"KComZ Spells Support"

By MAJ. GEN. E. J. MCGAW, USA
Commanding General, Korean
Communications Zone

WHEN the Korean armistice was signed at Panmunjon in July of 1953, the Korean Communications Zone was just a few days over one year old. During its first year, the name of the command, and its alphabetical abbreviation "KComZ," were little known to the American public. Many who heard of it for the first time might have wondered just what "KComZ" meant.

Maj. Gen. McGaw

It is difficult to cover the breadth of its meaning in capsule form. But briefly, KComZ spells "support"—logistical support of all types for all the United Nations forces in Korea and the armed forces of our ally, the Republic of Korea—plus direct assistance of a different nature for the Ko-

ROPA BILL SEEN IN PERIL

Failure of the Pentagon to submit a "New Look" Reserve program to Congress probably will foreclose all chances that a new Reserve promotion law will be enacted this year.

The Reserve Officer Personnel Act (short title, ROPA) passed the House a year ago this month and is now pending before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Initial hearings by the Senate Committee were held in April but Defense leaders asked that a full-scale inquiry be postponed until the Department submitted detailed plans for a stronger Reserve program. This, the Pentagon has not done.

Congress Expected To Postpone Action On Medical Care Bill Until Next Session

Informed Capitol sources said this week it is now doubtful any further action will be taken on the Dependent Medical Care Bill during the present session of Congress.

This would be a major loss in the Pentagon's career attractiveness campaign.

The proposed legislation—which provides for treatment of military families at civilian institutions with the Government footing part of the cost—has been pending before the Senate Armed Services Committee since late April when it was introduced by Chairman Leverett Saltsonstall (R-Mass.).

An identical bill was presented to the House this week by Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the House Armed Services Committee. Spokesmen indicated, however, that too little time is left before adjournment to launch lengthy hearings which the measure would require.

Numerous Senators and Congressmen have indicated interest in the proposal. If it goes over until next year, chances are it will receive early priority handling in the next session.

Included in the proposed plan are the basic recommendations of the Moulton Commission. This group recommended a number of solutions to the problems of providing adequate medical care for dependents of military personnel.

As introduced by Chairman Saltsonstall and Short, the bill would require the Government to meet a substantial part of all costs involved when military dependents are treated by civilian doctors or at civilian facilities.

President Eisenhower declared in his State of the Union and Budget Messages to Congress that action should be taken to improve medical care for Service families.

It is possible that a last-minute push by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and the White House may be made in behalf of the medical care legislation, but at this late date in the Congressional session such a development is not seen likely.

ARMY PROMOTES 613

The Army this week released the names of approximately 479 first lieutenants promoted to captain and about 134 captains advanced to major in a wind-up of fiscal '54 advancements. Details and names are published on page 1350.

UNIFORM DELAY

A surprising delay by the Military Appropriations Subcommittee of the Senate late this week threatened to delay until mid-July final approval of the Army Green uniform. Pentagon officials were disappointed. See back page for explanation.

Army Will Hasten Cut

In Far East Forces

Faced with necessity of eliminating almost a quarter of a million men from its rolls in the next 12 months, the Army shortly will begin a stepped-up withdrawal of forces from the Pacific.

This will be accomplished in one of two ways: either by returning additional divisions intact or by reducing strength of units now in the Far East, notably in Korea—probably the latter.

The Army now has 6 divisions in the Pacific, 5 of them in Korea.

The fiscal '55 budget, as it cleared Congress, makes certain a heavy cut in Army manpower in the Pacific. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, among others, declared that U. S. forces in Europe will not be cut. Both reiterated the President's determination to strengthen the Strategic Reserve in the United States.

No responsible Government official has given any indication to date that original fiscal '55 manpower plans will be changed.

LT. GEN. PALMER TO BE NEW ARMY DEPUTY

Lt. Gen. Williston B. Palmer, USA, will be named the Army's first Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics. He will exert command control over the Technical Services.

(A report on the responsibilities General Palmer will have in his post is published on page 1335 of this issue.)

General Palmer, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, since 21 Dec. 1952, has a career background which has put him in top jobs, both in the command and logistics areas. A corps artillery commander in the ETO during WW II, he served as Director of Logistics for the European Command in 1948.

After service the next year as European Command Vice Chief of Staff, he commanded the 82d Airborne Division from November 1949 until November 1950 when he became commanding general of the 2d Armored Division.

General Palmer took the 2d Armored to Germany in 1951 and then was transferred to Korea to become commander of the X Corps.

While serving in the Far East during the past two and a half years, he also was Chief of the United Nations Command Korean Armistice Delegation and Deputy Commander of the Eighth Army in Korea.

Family Housing Plan Hits Snag On Hill; Subcommittee May Cut Funds In Half

Plans to construct needed housing for military families have run into unexpected difficulty on Capitol Hill. A spokesman said late this week that the $350 million program may be cut in half.

As first submitted to Congress, the plans called for a direct appropriation which would permit the military departments to build 25,000 family units at numerous Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps bases. Following initial House Armed Services Committee hearings, the bill was re-drafted to provide that funds for the project could be culled from left-over money in the Defense Department's Working Capital Fund. This was opposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

In an effort to iron out the various problems involved, Chairman Short (R-Mo.) turned the hearings over to a Subcommittee headed by Representative Leroy Johnson (R-Calif.). It will be this group's responsibility to come up with a new plan.

A spokesman said this probably will mean a return to the original idea of direct appropriations. President Eisenhower already has asked the Congress for supplemental Defense money totalling more than one billion dollars and including $175 million for military housing. Presumably this would enable the Services to get started on at least 12,500 new family units.

When the President transmitted the request early last month he did not specify how the housing money was to be spent. He did note that it would "be made available to the respective military departments" in amounts to be determined by the Secretary of Defense.

Senate Group Approves Re-Up Pay Boost; Top Rankers Would Get More Than $1,000

The Senate Armed Services Committee has approved the new reenlistment bonus bill, increasing the average re-up payment from $258 to $537, and making it possible for some personnel to draw bonuses of more than $1,000 for first reenlistment.

In recommending passage of the bill, the Committee noted it "seeks to revise the present reenlistment bonus scale so that the individual who has advanced up the promotion ladder into higher grades receives a larger bonus."

Thus, if an Army sergeant and corporal were to both enter on first reenlistments of six years, the sergeant would receive a bonus of $912 and the corporal would receive $774. If both were to enter on four-year first-reenlistments, the sergeant would be paid a bonus of $608 and the corporal would receive $516.

A member who advances to master sergeant or chief petty officer during his first enlistment could (by reenlisting for six years) draw a bonus of $1,236.

Under the present bonus plan, an individual in the lowest enlisted grade receives the same bonus as a member in the highest enlisted grade. To that extent, the Committee reported, "the payment of the bonus has no selective features which pay more for the highly skilled and highly trained individual than they do to the less talented person."

Personnel in all pay grades, however, would receive increased bonus payments under the new plan. An explanation of the new system for computing bonuses was carried in THE JOURNAL on 29 May.

Following its first hearing on the bill, the Committee asked the Defense Department to conduct a spot check to see what enlisted personnel think of the plan.

RAdm. J. P. Womble, Jr., Director of the Office of Personnel Policy, reported that a sample survey of 605 personnel was conducted. He said 88 per cent favored the new bill, 59 per cent indicated they would be more inclined to reenlist under the new plan, and 53 per cent indicated they definitely would reenlist.

Extend Navy-USMC Integration Authority; Plan Permanent Policy For All Services

The Navy-Marine Corps Integration Bill reached the floor of the Senate this week on the final leg of its Congressional journey.

As passed by the House and reported by the Senate Armed Services Committee, the measure (HR 6725) permits the two Services to continue transferring Reserve and temporary officers into their Regular ranks through 30 June 1955.

By that date, the Committee notes, it is anticipated that a permanent integration policy for all of the Services "will have become operative."

Under the extended integration program for the Navy and Marine Corps, approximately 700 officers (below the grade of major and lieutenant commander) will be transferred to the Regular ranks during fiscal '55. About 400 will be integrated in the Navy and about 300 in the Marine Corps.

In limiting the program to officers below field grade, the Committee noted that "regular promotion lists at the present time contain an undesirable accumulation of officers of approximately the same ages in the grades of commander and lieutenant commander in the Navy and comparable grades in the Marine Corps." These promotion "humps," the Committee said, "should not be aggravated."

Prior to House approval of the measure, it was amended to give officers appointed permanently under its provisions their present temporary grade. Thus, officers will be integrated in permanent grades and may also be temporarily appointed to a higher grade appropriate to the lineal position assigned.

Marine Corps Has New Asst. Commandant As Gen. Pate Relieves Gen. Thomas

Maj. Gen. Randolph McCall Pate, USMC, moved into the three-star post of Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps and Chief of Staff at USMC Headquarters on 1 July.

He relieved Lt. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, USMC, who assumed the duties of Commandant of Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., on 30 June when General Clifton B. Cates, USMC, retired after 37 years of service.

As more than seven thousand Quantico troops passed in review, an aerial sweep of jets, helicopters and other Marine aircraft joined in the tribute to General Cates whose fourth star was pinned on by General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., USMC, Commandant of the Marine Corps.

General Cates was Commandant of the Marine Corps from 1 Jan. 1948 to 31 Dec. 1951.

General Pate, whose last assignment was Commanding General of the First Marine Division in Korea, was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in 1921.

As Deputy Chief of Staff to the Commanding General, FMFPac, he performed many complex duties which aided the CG during the amphibious operations on Palau, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

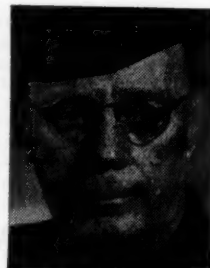

Prior to WW II, General Pate served in the Republic of Santo Domingo, China and Hawaii.

He was assigned to duty as Chief of Staff of the Marine Corps Schools in July 1948, and later was named Director of the Marine Corps Educational Center, MCS, Quantico, Va. In July 1951, he became Deputy Director of the Joint Staff for Logistics and Plans in the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

General Thomas is a veteran of 36 years. He led the First Marine Division in Korea for eight months, winning the Distinguished Service Medal for outstanding courage and leadership.

During WW II, he was Chief of Staff of the First Marine Division at Guadalcanal in 1942, and Chief of Staff of the First Marine Amphibious Corps during the Empress Augusta Bay Operation at Bougainville in November of the following year.

As an enlisted Marine in WW I, he saw action at Verdun, Belleau Wood, Soissons, and participated in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive. He was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in September 1918.

Officers In All Ranks Eligible For Off-Duty Study; Government May Pay 75% Of Cost

Thousands of officers will become eligible for off-duty education assistance under the 1955 Defense Appropriations Act.

Former restrictions, contained in the 1954 Appropriations Act, limited tuition assistance for off-duty study courses to officers in the rank of first lieutenant or below in the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps, and to officers in the rank of lieutenant (jg) and below in the Navy.

This ban will be lifted as soon as the new appropriations measure is enacted. In the future, officers of all ranks will be permitted to sign up for courses at civilian institutions with the Government footing up to 75 per cent of their tuition and expenses.

They must, however, agree to remain on active duty for two years after the completion of any such training. No restrictions are placed on enlisted personnel.

As re-written by the House Appropriations Committee, the section dealing with off-duty study assistance provides:

"... up to 75 per cent of tuition and expenses for off-duty education at civilian institutions will now be payable for enlisted and other than commissioned personnel without further restriction."

"Commissioned personnel will be required to obligate themselves to serve on active duty for two years after the completion of any such training in order to qualify for the expense assistance of up to 75 per cent."

"No limitations on eligibility related to rank are imposed."

The bill also permits legal training in off-duty hours with the Government paying up to 75 per cent of the costs.

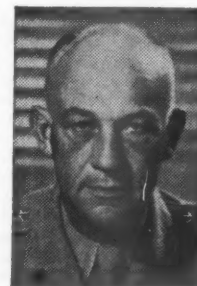

Doctor of Laws Degree Conferred On Gen. Hull

An honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon General John E. Hull, USA, U. S.

Commander in Chief Far East, 21 June by his alma mater, Miami University of Ohio.

The degree was awarded in ceremonies at General Hull's Tokyo home by John D. Millett, President of the university, who passed through Japan en route to the Philippines where he will act as consultant to the University of the Philippines Public Affairs Institute. Japanese and United Nations dignitaries attended.

General Hull's citation commended him for "commanding the forces of the United States and the United Nations in a crucial area of strategic concern in the Free World's effort to halt the spread of Communism."

LET THEM BEAT THE MUD

A top Defense Department official has declared that the "desire on the part of accountants to be able to compute accurate cost records or of bureaucrats to shuffle papers should not be permitted to destroy the morale of our most promising officers."

This statement was made by Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah at the recent Quantico, Va., Secretaries Conference during remarks in which he urged that authority be extended comparable to responsibility.

Said Dr. Hannah: "We entrust senior officers with great responsibilities involving thousands of men and millions of dollars worth of equipment and then as an example fail to give them authority to even authorize a sidewalk that will keep men out of the mud and save more money in annual cleaning and maintenance costs than the cost of the walk. All large successful civilian organizations with which I am familiar make a very great effort to decentralize authority out into the hands of those with responsibility."

11,000 Pound Household Allowance Takes Effect As Services Enter Fiscal Year '55

During the current fiscal year, which began on 1 July, military personnel will be permitted to ship up to 11,000 pounds of household goods and personal effects at Government expense on change of station.

This is 2,000 pounds more than the ceiling authorized during fiscal '54.

The 1955 Appropriations bill contains the new limitations. It also provides that personnel transferred to or serving in stations outside the continental U. S., or in Alaska, under orders which relieved them from a duty station in the U. S. prior to 10 July 1952, will not be bound by the limitations if they are returned to the U. S. under orders on or after 1 July 1953. This means that personnel who shipped more than 9,000 pounds overseas at Government expense will be permitted to ship the "excessive" amount back, also at Government expense.

Reporting the changed transportation allowance, the House said, "It is understood that this matter will be further studied by the House Committee on Armed Services."

Since that time, a Defense Department group has been working on the problem and is expected to be ready soon to submit draft legislation establishing permanent transportation allowances.

There is strong belief that the Pentagon legislation, not likely to be introduced until next year, will seek to raise considerably the 11,000 pound ceiling for officers in the highest grades.

Navy Sets Up Course For Information Officers

The Navy has established a new course of instruction to meet its need for trained officers to fill information billets.

The first Information Officers Training Course will be convened at the Naval School, Journalists, Great Lakes, Ill., on 23 August. Later classes are scheduled for 4 Oct. and 15 Nov.

Each class will be limited to 15 students. Commands desiring to send officers to the course should submit requests for quotas to the Chief of Naval Personnel, (Attn: Pers-C122). Attendance will be on a TemAdduIns basis and TAD costs will be borne by the Command to which the officer is attached.

Officers nominated for the course should have a minimum of 18 months service in a sea duty billet, and be a Naval Academy graduate or a graduate of an accredited college or university. The educational requirement, however, may be waived if the ability for information work has been demonstrated.

Prepared in cooperation with the Public Relations and Communications School of Boston University, the five-week course of instruction does not conflict with the short public information courses now being conducted by the Fleets for collateral duty information personnel.

New Army Deputy Will Be Pentagon Power; Accountability Seen Problem

A special high-level Pentagon committee was at work late this week making plans to implement the new Army Organization, with creation of a new Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics seen as probably the first major step.

Later, a Continental Commander will be designated.

THE JOURNAL last week published the complete text of a presentation on the Army Organization plan made at the recent Quantico, Va., Secretaries Conference by Army Secretary John Slezak.

Subsequently, Army Secretary Robert

Text of Statement On DCS/Logistics

The following is the text of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens' statement concerning action being taken in "strengthening the Logistical Organization."

To correct major organizational deficiencies in the logistics field it will be necessary:

(1) To distinguish between activity which is primarily military in its conception, planning, and execution (for example, combat operations), and activity which, although it is in support of military activity, partakes more of the industrial or commercial in conception, in process, and in management (for example, the wholesale-level activity through which materiel and logistics services are furnished to the combat forces), in order to provide a basis for organizing the Army effectively for the performance of its mission in war and peace.

(2) To distinguish between national-and-wholesale-level logistics and local-or-user-level logistics, in order to provide for appropriate and effective management of each.

(3) To provide an organizational structure which will facilitate the effective management of the wholesale industrial-commercial type activities of the Army in peace and war, and which is capable of immediate and orderly expansion.

(4) To eliminate the present conflicting division of responsibility for control of the Technical Services; and for support of the Technical Service Class II installations. All funds and personnel required for the Technical Services, and for the operation of their Class II installations, should flow through one channel.

(5) To provide organizational arrangements which will facilitate the development of career personnel who are truly proficient in the broad and important field of logistics; as well as combat officers, and technical and professional specialists.

Substantially the entire wholesale industrial-commercial type establishment of the Department of the Army in the Cont. U. S. is concentrated under the command of the Army's seven Technical Services. Within the Technical Service organizations, likewise, inheres responsibility for the supply of Army materiel and the provision of most of the logistics services. Therefore by grouping the seven Technical Services under single direction, there will be concentrated substantially the entire responsibility for national and wholesale level materiel logistics. Also, a natural division of national and wholesale level logistics responsibility from local and user logistics responsibility can thus be delineated.

If an integrated Army logistics systems is to be achieved, the appointment of a Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics is a vital first step. The Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics must be given full authority for the provision, administration, and control of military personnel, civilian personnel, and funds for and the direction and control of the seven Technical Services. He should be charged with responsibility for developing a cohesive, integrated logistics organization and system, and logistics management techniques, designed for the performance of the over-all Army logistics mission in a manner which will provide the Army with the maximum of military effectiveness for each dollar spent, without regard to the limitations traditionally associated with the "corps" organizations of the Technical Services, and applying the principles of business organization and management intelligently and energetically where these are applicable and beneficial.

For the Secretary of the Army and the trovrsal problem—namely how much of the present authority and responsibility now held by G-1 should be assigned to the new Deputy.

It appears clear, on the basis of the excerpt from Mr. Stevens' statement published below, that the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics will have strong control over assignment patterns for officers in the technical services.

Another major point of dispute in the overall Army Organization Plan has to do with the chain of command and consequent accountability.

It is pointed out, for example, that the new Organization makes the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics (as was shown in the chart published in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL) directly responsible to both the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Logistics and the Chief of Staff.

Furthermore, other explanatory Pentagon charts show that the Army Assistant Secretary for Logistics is to have a

Chief of Staff, the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics should have a command relationship to the Technical Services. In addition, the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics should exercise staff supervision over wholesale-level logistics activities overseas. He must have a Logistics Staff to support and assist him.

Initially the position of Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics and positions in the Logistics Staff must be filled with the best qualified personnel available. It should immediately become their job to develop, as a matter of urgency, career arrangements which will improve the background and broaden the experience of Technical Service officers in such a manner as to fit them for advancement to successively higher levels of logistics activities. The objective should be to fill all positions in the Logistics Staff and the Immediate Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics with the personnel developed under these career arrangements at the earliest practicable date; and to appoint the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics from among officers of the Technical Services just as soon as individuals capable of handling this position can be developed or discovered.

It is conceivable that an officer commissioned in the Medical Corps might have broader capabilities and have the desire to forsake his initial professional specialization and become a logistician. (A Medical Corps officer once was Chief of Staff for a four-year period.) The way should be open for any Technical Service officer who has the desire and the capability to develop into a logistician to do so, and to win the promotion in rank and in organizational position which are commensurate with the broader usefulness thus attained. At the same time, arrangements must be made to protect the professional specialization of Technical Service officers who desire to remain in their technical fields, both for the sake of those officers and, even more important, for the effective performance of the technical and professional functions which are so necessary to the accomplishment of the Army's mission.

Initially there should be transferred to the Logistics Staff from other elements of the Army Staff, including the General Staff, and from the Office of Civilian Personnel, activities and functions pertaining to the Technical Services, including, but not limited to, career management, personnel administration, and manpower control; budgeting, apportionment, and allocation of all funds among the Technical Services, and other financial management functions and activities; materiel research and development; requirements, procurement, supply, services, and programming and control functions in the logistics field; and legal functions of the Technical Services.

Responsibility for the training activities and functions which are now being performed by the Technical Services should be transferred initially to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics. Responsibility for these training functions, for logistics planning, and for logistics functions at the retail, local, and user level, should be the subject of further study. Initially the logistics planning function in connection with Joint Chiefs of Staff activity should remain with the Assistant logistics functions at Class I installations Chief of Staff, G-4; and responsibility for the should be transferred to the Continental Army Commander.

It is recommended that the position of Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics be established, and that the incumbent be given the authority and charged with the responsibilities indicated; and that a Logistics Staff to assist him be formed as discussed in the foregoing paragraphs.

close relationship with four different Assistant Secretaries of Defense (Supply and Logistics, Properties and Installations, Applications Engineering and Research and Development), plus the Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Atomic Energy.

Pentagon organization students see in this set-up a possibility that the Chief of Staff could at times be by-passed.

Many feel that the Army Organization Plan will impair the coordinating function of the General Staff as a result of the dual-purpose lines of command.

On the other hand, it is the feeling of many Defense officials that the new Organization will do just the opposite and will eliminate the confusion as regarding accountability which featured the ammunition investigation.

The Army Organization makes the Comptroller responsible also to an Assistant Secretary (Financial Management) and to the Chief of Staff.

Gen. Christenberry Retires

Maj. Gen. Charles W. Christenberry, USA, a veteran of both World Wars and Korea, retired from active duty 30 June during ceremonies at First Army Headquarters, Governors Island, N. Y.

General Christenberry has been appointed executive officer of the American-Korean Foundation.

During WW II, General Christenberry was Adjutant General of the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations under British Field Marshal Alexander. He later served under General James Van Fleet in Korea as Deputy Chief of Staff for the Eighth Army, and Assistant Chief of Staff for Personnel in Japan under General Mark W. Clark.

J. Glasgow had two sons, both West Point graduates: Joseph M. Glasgow (012232 USMA Nov. 18 (also Cavalry and now Retd.) William J. Glasgow, Jr. (016861 USMA 27 (deceased Nov. 1947). His only Glasgow grandson, Joseph M. Glasgow, Jr., to whom I refer in first paragraph, entered M.I.T. at age 17 yrs. and completed two years there before going into Air Cadets and was given a Regular Commission in the Air Force as a Navigator from Ellington AFB Navigation School in Oct. '50, being top in his class. The old gentleman, General (W. J.) Glasgow is quite pleased to have tradition carried on, and I believe some recognition would please him in your Army-Navy-Air Force Journal.

I checked on both Glasgow, William J. (0381) pg. 2210 of Army and Air Force Register 1948 and pg. 2317 of same Vol., (which is Vol. 11) for Malone, Paul B.

Mrs. William L. M. Van Der Heggen, Dunroving Ranch, Chilmark, Mass.

USMA'S OLDEST GRAD?

A report from Ft. Bragg, N. C., published as a caption for the above photograph in the issue of 12 June, described Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, USA-Ret., USMA '94, as the oldest living graduate of West Point.

Col. Leon C. Dennis, 720 Twentieth Street, West, Bradenton, Fla., advises that General Malone is not the oldest living West Point graduate.

"Col. Henry T. Ferguson, who resides in this city (Bradenton) is very much alive," Colonel Dennis relates. "He was born 23 August 1868 and was graduated from West Point in the Class of 1890."

Another Reader's View

Editor, The Journal:

Since my son, Lt J. M. Glasgow, Jr., is in the Air Force, I read The Journal weekly. On page 1236 of 12 June I have read with astonishment that "Major General Paul B. Malone, the oldest living West Point graduate (Class of 1894) is shown" and etc.

My son's grandfather of whom I am most fond and whom I saw recently in good health in El Paso, Texas, is Brig. Gen. William Jefferson Glasgow, B.Mo. 18 May 66, USMA 91 ret'd. May 1927 (Disability in line of duty). Serial Number 0381.

Major General Paul B. Malone, B.N.Y. 8 May 72 USMA 1894. Serial Number 0442.

General (W.J.) Glasgow is still "Father" Glasgow to me and it has been between us for many years that his "next ambition was to be the oldest living graduate of West Point." It has been for a number of years a semi-joke between us: "Father Glasgow, how are you coming along on that goal?"

It would be splendid if some recognition in form of article could be given: General W.

Lieutenant Generals Willis D. Crittenger, Robert L. Eichelberger and Leonard T. Gerow and Admiral Alan G. Kirk, all retired, met with their former comrade in arms, President Eisenhower, at an informal White House stag dinner attended by other distinguished guests. The affair was one of a series given by the President since he took office.

General Crittenger, former Commanding General of the First Army, is now Executive Vice President of the Greater New York Fund. General Eichelberger, World War II Commander of the Eighth Army, lives in retirement at Asheville, N. C.; General Gerow, former Commanding General of the Second Army, lives in retirement at Petersburg, Va.; Admiral Kirk, who commanded the U. S. Naval task forces in the Normandy invasion and later served as Ambassador to Russia, now resides in New York City.

Substantial savings have always been returned to officer-members of the USAA during all of the Association's 32 years.

During 1953, 180,000 officers insured by USAA shared in dividends of $4,300,000—an increase of more than $1,000,000 above 1952.

Did you get in on these tremendous savings?

When you insure today, be sure it's with USAA.

Enjoy the best of automobile and household-personal effects insurance at the lowest possible cost by preparing now to participate in future dividend distributions by the USAA.

* Last year (1953) USAA policyholders received 20% initial discount from the manual premium and a 30% dividend at end of policy year—resulting in a 44% saving. In Texas, where initial discount is prohibited, a 44% dividend on manual rates was returned at end of policy year.

Navy Creates Rank Designators for WO's

Separate sleeve and shoulder marks for the four grades of warrant officer have been approved by the Secretary of the Navy.

The creation of the new stripes and shoulder-board rank designations was made necessary by the recent passage of the Warrant Officer Bill which set up military grades of W-1, W-2, W-3, and W-4.

At present, there are approximately 1350 officers in pay-grades W-1, 2,000 in W-2, 2,600 in W-3, and 15 in W-4.

Although the four military ranks will become effective on 1 November, the Navy will not require warrant officers to begin wearing the rank designations immediately. There will be a transition period of several months a Navy spokesman said.

The sleeve rank insignia of commissioned warrant officers will be indicated by a single one-half inch stripe of gold lace (one-quarter of an inch for W-1's) broken by one-half inch breaks of bright blue silk thread on the blue coat, as follows: W-4—1 break; W-3—two breaks, two inches apart; W-2—three breaks, two inches apart; and W-1—three breaks, two inches apart.

Marks on shoulder-board will be the same as that specified for the blue service coat, except that the one-half inch, blue silk breaks will be one-half inch apart instead of two inches apart.

W-2's upon promotion to W-3 will be able to shift their sleeve stripe so that only two blue breaks show on the face of the sleeve.

Collar marks, proposed by the Permanent Uniform Board, have not yet been approved by the Navy. It is expected that a decision regarding collar designations will be made late next month.

Navy Convenes Boards To Name Staff RAdms.

Staff Corps selection boards to recommend active duty captains for temporary promotion to rear admiral will be convened by the Navy on 27 July.

The boards will consider officers of the Medical, Dental, Supply and Civil Engineer Corps.

Eligible officers are those whose Line running mates are senior to Capt. Charles M. Jett, USN, whose Signal Number is 2285.

Promotion zones in each Corps terminate with the junior officer whose Line running mate is senior to Capt. Harry A. Dunn, jr., USN, Signal Number 827.

Signal numbers refer to the 1 January 1953 Register.

Capt. Cabanillas 10th ND CofS

Capt. Jose M. Cabanillas, USN, former assistant chief of staff for operations of the Fifth Naval District at Norfolk, Va., has assumed the post of chief of Staff to RAdm. G. B. H. Hall, USN, Commander Caribbean Sea Frontier and Commandant of the Tenth Naval District, Puerto Rico.

He was greeted on his arrival in Puerto Rico by Capt. Louis E. Gunther, USN, Inspector General, who has been acting chief of staff since Capt. Kenneth Earl, USN, who formerly held the post was reassigned last month.

Lt. Col. Hay To El Toro

Lt. Col. Hardy Hay, USMC, Communications Officer of the 3d MAW, Miami, Fla., has been transferred to El Toro, Calif.

Colonel Hay, the former Commanding Officer of VMA-312, had been stationed at Miami since July 1953. He has held the post of OIC of Communications since January.

Navy To Affirm 19,000 Within Next Few Weeks

The Temporary appointments of approximately 19,000 Naval officers serving on active duty are expected to be affirmed by the Secretary of the Navy within the next few weeks.

The majority of these officers are lieutenants and lieutenant commanders.

THE JOURNAL also learned that Navy Secretary Charles C. Thomas, acting for the President, has already affirmed the appointments of seven officers who were scheduled to retire on 1 July.

The Affirmation Bill, signed by President Eisenhower on 18 June, applies to active duty officers who were temporarily promoted in the last four fiscal years. The Bill, S. 3524, in the form of an amendment to the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, authorizes the affirmation of promotions made under the Temporary Promotion Act of 24 July 1941. A Navy spokesman said that no further promotions will be made under the 1941 Act.

The passage of the Affirmation Bill eliminates the necessity of the Navy setting up reselection boards, and gives Temporary officers Officer Personnel Act status. Before these officers were blanketed-in under the OPA, they were not eligible to fill vacancies which existed in Permanent billets.

A Navy official also pointed out that before the passage of the new legislation, the Navy could not discharge officers who had twice failed of selection. He said that about 200 officers have already been sent notifications that they are eligible for discharge from the Naval Service with severance pay.

Under the provisions of the Bill, officers having twice failed of selection in the grades of lieutenant and lieutenant (jg), since 29 March 1951, are entitled to receive a lump-sum discharge payment, if they make application on or before 17 December.

Officers in this category will normally receive orders within four months after the Chief of Naval Personnel's receipt of the request for discharge.

Those officers, who have been twice passed-over, and who do not request discharge, will remain eligible for consideration by selection boards unless severed from the active list under the provisions of other laws.

Nurse Corps officers are exempted from the provisions of the new law.

The lump-sum payment to those who elect to be honorably discharged will be computed on the basis of two months' active-duty pay at the time of discharge for each year of commissioned service. The total discharge payment may not exceed two years' active duty pay. A fractional year of six months or more will be considered a full year in computing the number of years of commissioned service.

The Navy will not send individual notices to the 19,000 officers whose appointments are pending affirmation.

USMC To Cut 7,000 EM In Low Mental Group

The Marine Corps expects to drop about 7,000 enlisted men in the lower mental group by the end of June 1955.

At present, there are approximately 200,000 enlisted Marines serving on active duty.

Effective 1 August, enlisted Regular Marines serving on an initial enlistment who have a GCT score of less than 90, will be screened by their commanding officers.

Marines who are not considered qualified for enlistment will be separated from the Service as follows: those having 35 months of service will be released in August; those with 34 months in September; 33 months, October; 32 months, November; 31 months, December.

Enlisted Regular Marines who attain 30 months of service between January and June 1955, and who lack the necessary GCT score, will be dropped from the Marine Corps rolls in the month they reach the two and a half year mark.

Inductees and Reservists who were integrated into the Regular Marine Corps while serving on active duty are not affected by the new reduction policy, but Reservists who integrated at a recruiting station and entered active duty as Regulars, fall into the category of those whose qualifications will be screened.

Full details of the policy are contained in Marine Corps General Order No. 157.

Navy Selects 131 USNR WAVES For LCdr.; Outnumber Regular Selections Six To One

Navy selection boards have picked 131 WAVE Reserve officers for promotion to lieutenant commander—more than six times the number of Regulars selected by recent boards.

Included in the group were 109 Line officers (14 on active duty), 16 Supply Corps officers (five on active duty), one inactive Medical Corps officer and five Medical Service Corps officers (one on active duty).

Many of the women selected have more than eight years' service in the grade of lieutenant; others completed four years in grade only this week.

One WAVE officer, Cdr. Margaret E. Combs, USNR, served on the five-member Line selection board, and a second WAVE officer, Lt. Olive H. Roberts, USN, was Recorder.

Cdr. Mary T. Sproul, MSC, USN, was the lone WAVE member on the Medical and Medical Service Corps board.

The Navy said officers selected by the boards "will be promoted along with their Regular Navy running mates."

Only the names of those selected by the Line board were available as THE JOURNAL went to press. They are:

The U.S. Navy Selects J 65 JETS to power Douglas A4D "Skyhawks" over greater distances with more powerful striking loads than any airplane of its type

Midget atom bombers, Douglas A4D Skyhawks deliver superior performance, yet are less than half the size of many current operational jet fighters. Powered by Curtiss-Wright J65 JETS, these bantam attack bombers are capable of carrying atom bombs, rockets, machine guns, missiles or other weapons to suit a wide variety of missions of attack-type airplanes.

The J65 JET which DEVELOPS HIGHER POWER than its announced rating of 7220 lbs. thrust and USES 6 PER CENT LESS FUEL combines outstanding performance today with the demonstrated capacity for power growth to meet the requirements of tomorrow's advanced aircraft.

SAC Bombing-Navigation "World Series" 23-29 Aug.

Top crews from each Strategic Air Command bombardment wing will compete for trophies in SAC's sixth annual Bombing and Navigation competition at Barksdale AFB, La., 23-29 August.

The wings will carry out simulated bombing attacks against several industrial cities, drop bombs on a practice range, and fly celestial navigation missions. Umpires will be aboard each bomber to monitor crew procedures, and scoring on simulated bomb runs will be done by radar bomb scoring teams and on visual releases by visual triangulation.

Although Barksdale will be headquarters for the competition and the B-47 aircraft will operate from there, the B-50 and B-36 aircraft will fly their missions from Walker AFB, N. M.

The purpose of the competition, which has been held every year since 1948 with the exception of 1950, is to promote the competitive spirit developed within SAC, and to determine the relative capability of bombardment wings and crews to find and hit selected targets, according to General Curtis LeMay, SAC commander.

In last year's competition the 92d Bomb Wing, of Fairchild AFB, Wash., won the General Muir S. Fairchild Trophy, which is awarded annually to the wing making the best combined showing in bombing and navigation. A 15-man 92d Bomb Wing B-36 crew commanded by Lt. Col. Milton C. Green, won the top overall crew award.

The 92d Bomb Wing also took honors as the top wing in bombing, while the 93d Bomb Wing of Castle AFB, Calif., was the top wing in navigation.

All former members of the 22d Bomb Group who are interested in attending the 6th Annual Reunion, are urged to get in touch with Walter Gaylor, 338 Rahway Avenue, Elizabeth, N. J.

AF Pays Tribute 14 July To Members of GOC

Special tribute will be paid by the Air Force to members of the Ground Observer Corps on 14 July, second anniversary of "Operation Skywatch."

"Operation Skywatch" was inaugurated two years ago when volunteer civilians began a round-the-clock plane-spotting program to supplement the Air Defense of the United States.

Since that time, some 19,000 observation posts and 49 filter centers have been established in 36 states.

In recognition of the "invaluable aid" afforded by members of "Operation Skywatch," the Air Force will observe Ground Observer Corps Day on 14 July. In a statement praising the job by the civilian plane spotters, General Benjamin W. Chidlaw, U. S. Air Defense Commander, said:

"I cannot praise the patriotism, nor the persistence, nor the patience of these people in their devotion to duty too highly. They are an example to us all in public service.

"They are an invaluable aid to our security, and will be for years to come. They manifest an interest and a concern in the future of this country which I feel must be made to prevail on the country as a whole to give us the strength to insure our freedom."

Gen. Chidlaw

Former West Point Tackle, One-Time Coach At Mexico Academy, Will Head Athletics

Lt. Col. Robert V. Whitlow, USAF, USMA '43, who was a great tackle on West Point football teams and who later coached the football team at the Colegio Militar de Mexico, will become Director of Intercollegiate Athletics at the Air Force Academy on or about 15 August.

Colonel Whitlow has been Assistant for Programming of the Air Defense Command, Ent AFB, Colo., for the past year and a half.

In addition to football, the 6' 4", 225 pound officer won letters in basketball and baseball at West Point.

After graduation, he logged more than 500 hours in the ETO during WW II as a pilot of bombers and fighters.

He was assigned to staff duties at U. S. Air Force Headquarters in Washington, D. C., following the war. In 1947 he was transferred to the West Point of Mexico, Colegio Militar de Mexico where he served as an exchange instructor for nearly two years. It was here that he exploited his athletic abilities when he voluntarily accepted the coaching responsibilities for the institution's football team. Under his tutelage, the team defeated a strong Randolph Field, Tex., eleven which boasted five former West Pointers, including Arnold Tucker and Doc Blanchard.

This was followed by two more years in Headquarters USAF, after which he was assigned to Hamilton AFB, Calif., where, in his off-duty hours, he managed to lead the base team to a Pacific conference championship in 1952.

Colonel Whitlow resides with his wife, the former Miss Cornell Kinsey of Winterhaven, Fla., and his son, at 1222 Hermosa Way, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Enlistment Drive Starts With 11,000 Monthly Goal Set as Requirement To Reach Strength

Under direction of Brig. Gen. Arno Luehman, USAF, the Air Force on 1 July launched its own enlistment campaign with an objective of an average 11,000 per month input for the next year.

That's the figure required to achieve Air Force manpower objectives, based on a reenlistment rate of 33 per cent.

In May, the Air Force received 9000 recruits from the joint Army-Air Force Recruiting Service.

Total Air Force strength at the end of May was estimated at 940,700. This compared with 936,768 a month earlier.

This means that the Air Force went into the new fiscal year with 15,000 men less than had been forecast when the defense budget was sent to Congress earlier this year.

The objective for the end of fiscal '55 is 970,000, of whom 127,411 will be officers.

Col. Goodwin Ranks Class At Aviation Medical School

An Air National Guard Colonel is the ranking officer of 36 enrolled in the latest Primary Class for squadron surgeons at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex.

He is Col. Paul Goodwin, 45, in civilian life a practitioner of industrial medicine in Bynum, Ala. After he completes the nine-week course at the Randolph Field institution, he will return to his practice there.

Another Air Guardsman in the class is Capt. Peter A. Bakal, who practices medicine in Schenectady, N. Y.

Lt. Col. Ralph N. Kraus is one of only three Regular Air Force officers in the group. He is an ear-nose-throat specialist, certified by the American Board of Otolaryngology.

The other Regulars are Maj. Maxwell W. Steel, jr. and Capt. Edmund J. Manogue.

RB-66A DEBUT

The Air Force and the Douglas Aircraft Company announced this week the first flight of the RB-66A, a swift, twin-jet reconnaissance bomber.

The plane, piloted by a company test pilot, flew from Long Beach Municipal Airport, Calif., to Edwards AFB, Calif., in 35 minutes. No other details of the swept-wing aircraft were disclosed.

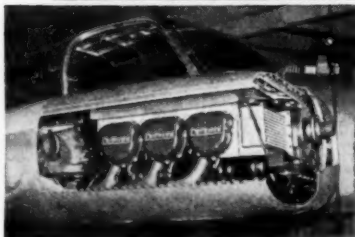

Gen. Wilson At MATS Hqs.

Brig. Gen. Albert T. Wilson, jr., USAF, reported 28 June to Military Air Transport Service (MATS) headquarters as Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations, Lt. Gen. Joseph Smith, USAF, MATS Commander announced. He replaces Col. Francis C. Gideon, who will assume command of the 1607th ABW, Dover AFB, Delaware.

General Wilson commanded the 1807th AACS Wing at Wiesbaden, Germany, prior to his assignment to MATS headquarters.

General Wilson is married to the former Elizabeth Hopkins. They have two children, Albert T. Wilson III, 19, and Judith H. Wilson, 14.

Compact Power FOR MODERN PLANES

Frontal area—and consequent drag—are reduced to an absolute minimum in Cessna's new Model 310. The Continental 0470B within its close-fitting pod is less than 34 inches wide—less than 21 inches high.

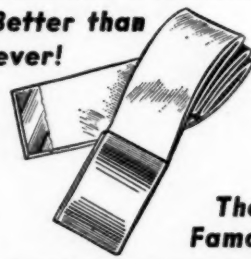

Cessna's new Model 310 is truly a star performer, and Continental 0470B's are two big reasons why. These modern-to-the-minute engines develop 240 h.p. each, but require minimum space, hence lend themselves ideally to modern plane design. Like the other models in this pioneer power plant line, they embody the results of specialized experience dating from 1902. Moreover, they're backed by service and parts wherever people fly.

CONTINENTAL MOTORS' REMANUFACTURING SERVICE SAVES YOU TIME AND MONEY

Continental's Remanufacturing Plan is another good reason for choosing an airplane with Continental power. This exchange service gives you a new factory-remanufactured engine—back to zero hours, and with factory engine guarantee—at a low fixed cost, with virtually no dead time.

Versatile Air Force Pilots Deliver Millions of Dollars in Planes To All Points of The Globe With Huge Savings For The Taxpayers

(The following special report was prepared by Col. Tarleton H. Watkins, USAF, commander of the 1708th Ferrying Group. The colonel describes the activities of a unique Air Force organization and the special problems confronting its personnel).

KELLY AFB, TEXAS—Each aerial delivery of a North American F-86 "Sabrejet," to an overseas destination, saves the American taxpayer approximately $6,000. The importance of this economy becomes readily apparent in the light of the several hundred aircraft delivered by the 1708th Ferrying Group, a unique organization operating out of Kelly Air Force Base, Texas.

Col. Watkins

Every 72 minutes throughout each day of the year, another aircraft is being delivered by the 1708th — as far east as Ankara— as far west as Saigon—to the southern tip of South America—and northward to Alaska. Millions of dollars of aircraft are delivered each month over distances totaling more than 125,000 miles.

By flying each aircraft to its destination in "ready-for-flight" condition, there has been a vast improvement over the erstwhile system of transporting aircraft by surface carrier. The latter procedure entailed high costs in disassembling and packing the aircraft for shipment and then re-assembling it again at its destination. The monetary saving inherent in aerial delivery is accompanied by a similar saving of time.

Global Delivery

The 1708th Ferrying Group of the United States Air Force's Military Air Transport Service is responsible for world-wide delivery of every type of military aircraft. This delivery is from the factories and repair depots to units throughout the world. In addition to furnishing pilots and crews for the major portion of all aircraft to be ferried, this Group is also responsible for planning and surveying routes to be used and exercising operational control over the movement of all ferried aircraft as well as the movement of certain tactical units.

A group of young pilots who are as versatile in their flying skills as any pilots found anywhere throughout the world is the supporting backbone of this organization. Many of them have achieved enviable combat records in Korea, winning some of the highest awards presented for aerial combat. These young men are qualified to fly just about every type aircraft known today, ranging from the tiny 2400 pound L-19, to the huge 185,000 pound, four-engine Douglas C-124 "Globe-master."

Jets Or Conventional

Pilots in the 1708th are normally qualified to fly from three to six different types of aircraft. However, there have been cases where pilots have maintained currency in as many as fourteen different planes at one time. The current trend is to limit pilots to either "Jets" or "Conventional" type aircraft because of the wide divergence in flying techniques and procedures between the two.

With the present trend towards "Super-sonic" planes, the men of the 1708th will soon begin training in such aircraft as the "Convair" F-102 and the "North American" F-100. When the day arrives for these presently publicized fighters to be delivered to combat squadrons throughout the world, the pilots in the 1708th will be at the controls making the aerial deliveries.

With a view towards the more efficient accomplishment of its mission, the 1708th established three squadrons and several detachments within the continental limits of the United States, as well as a number of detachments throughout the world, where aircraft are presently being delivered.

The overseas detachments serve as operational centers for the control of ferried aircraft.

Control Officer

A little publicized and novel position created by the 1708th is that of the Ferrying Control Officer who is stationed at the major aircraft plants which produce planes to be ferried. This close contact with civilian corporations provides for a faster ferrying service as the planes roll off the assembly lines. Early in 1953, one of the most outstanding feats in modern aviation was put into operation by pilots of the 1708th. This was the delivery of hundreds of "Sabrejets" and Republic F-84 "Thunderjets," across the North Atlantic Ocean, unescorted.

The first flight of three F-84's accomplished this North Atlantic crossing in a modest three weeks. This first flight and a few succeeding ones paved the way for the establishment of better conditions for the flights that followed. It soon became apparent that the rigorous cold encountered in the northern regions made necessary a number of aircraft modifications and the establishment of supplies of extra parts along the route. Since those first few flights, the time element in delivery has been cut to comparatively short intervals to speed the delivery of needed aircraft.

"High Flight"

These flights were the forerunners of the presently well known project "High Flight," which has seen the F-86, F-84 and T-33 aircraft delivered in quantity to our units in Europe and to our allies. In addition to this spectacular movement of jet planes, there is a steady flow of multi-engine conventional aircraft, vital to our present operation in the European area, across this route.

While a large portion of deliveries have been made to the European area, it is by no means the limit of operations by this world-encircling organization. Aircraft are constantly being delivered to Alaska, the far reaches of the Pacific and to our neighbors in South America. To accomplish their mission, the men of the Group have adopted the unofficial slogan: "We ferry ALL types of aircraft ANYWHERE in the world in the fastest, safest, and most economical way possible."

About a year ago, in order to keep up with ever-changing demands, the Group reorganized its three squadrons into specialized units. These squadrons were the 1737th Ferrying Squadron, Dover AFB, Del.; 1738th Ferrying Squadron, Long Beach, Calif.; and the 1739th Ferrying Squadron, Amarillo AFB, Tex. The squadrons in California and Delaware were given the responsibility of handling all deliveries of jet and single-engine aircraft. The Texas squadron took over the movement of all multi-engine conventional planes. This relocation and grouping of ferrying specialties has added immeasurably to the Group's capability, not only in movement of aircraft, but in carrying out its essential training program which is a vital part of the Group's operation.

The Maintenance and Supply sections of these units also found that this new arrangement aided them in their operation because it provided an opportunity for consolidating personnel with particular job specialties as well as reducing the number of aircraft parts needed at each unit. This eliminated the necessity for individual unit's dividing their facilities to cover a large number of different types of aircraft which formerly had resulted in a decreased capability for meeting their mission.

Each new pilot assigned to a squadron immediately enters a comprehensive training program and he continues in this training until he has proved himself to be proficient in the aircraft he will be charged with ferrying. Following this training period, the pilot faces one final obstacle which he must surmount before he is considered ready to go to work, namely the "Ready Board." This is a board of officers who hold the job of determining whether or not the pilot is fully qualified to assume the responsibility of ferrying an aircraft.

Safety Paramount

Flying safety is of paramount interest in the 1708th and because of the many hazardous routes which are flown as a matter of daily routine, there is a constant program for training in the latest techniques in emergency procedures. Overwater flying requires close attention to ditching drills and survival in the water. Flying across the Northern Atlantic route requires a thorough knowledge of arctic survival and flights throughout the South Pacific and across South America require techniques peculiar to jungle survival. This wide divergence of operating areas requires a sound and thorough training program of its own.

Thorough training in inflight emergency procedures has paid off in many instances. Two near major accidents, which were diverted through the personal skill of the pilots involved, are mute testimony to this fact.

In one instance a pilot assigned to the 1739th Ferrying Squadron flew his C-119 for over six hours on a single engine. The other engine had failed and he was forced to fly overwater in severe weather at night, and returned to the base from which he departed successfully. On another occasion two pilots of the 1737th at Delaware were approaching Louisville, Kentucky in their T-33 for a landing when they experienced engine trouble which resulted in a flameout. After a successful air start, they were able to control the power settings, but nevertheless, were able to effect a successful landing.

Continuous Training

Because of the widely diversified nature of the mission of the Group, a continuous training program must be maintained for the men behind the scenes, the maintenance men. The successful accomplishment of the organization's mission depends as much upon them as upon the pilots and crews.

To maintain its extensive operation, the Ferrying Group is involved in a comprehensive program of coordination and planning with the Air Materiel Command, as well as many other major commands. The normal procedure for determining ferrying commitments begins at Air Force Headquarters in Washington, D. C. Proposed requirements are forwarded to Air Materiel Command Headquarters at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, where a forecast, based on anticipated aircraft production, is prepared. This forecast is then sent to the Headquarters of the 1708th where the plans, procedures, and details necessary to ferrying the aircraft are worked out by experienced staff officers.

The Ferrying Control Center at Group Headquarters is the hub of activity in which is centered the control of the crews and aircraft. A system of control boards lists the name of all the pilots and crew members, their qualifications and their availability for ferrying missions. Aircraft being ferried are followed from station to station, from pickup point to destination. Direct wire contact with Flight Service and a battery of teletype machines feed accurate, up-to-date information on the status and location of each plane into the Control Center. Frequent-

A Positive Approach. Military leaders of the Armed Forces, having scored striking success in spotlighting a vital defense problem and in bringing it to the enlightened attention of their civilian chiefs, Congressional leaders and the Nation as a whole now will do well to continue and to intensify the recent trend of emphasizing the positive action being taken at all echelons to raise career attractiveness. The Army progress report on this subject, published in full in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, is a case in point. So, too, is the vigorous Air Force campaign aimed at acquainting airmen and officers with the many new policies being implemented to encourage retention of "hard core" personnel and to attract outstanding young men for military service. Similarly, the Navy and Marine Corps are putting added emphasis on the positive side of the ledger.

It goes without saying that the campaign to raise career attractiveness must be pressed forward with energy and determination. Much remains to be done. The deplorable loss of military professionals will not be checked effectively until men and women in Service are assured equitable pay scales in relation to the cost-of-living, adequate quarters for themselves, decent housing and sufficient medical care for their families, and not until mixed-up legislation which makes it worth thousands for a young man to leave Service and only a few hundred dollars to reenlist is straightened out can the problem be licked. The current jeopardy of the family medical care bill is particularly aggravating.

Notwithstanding the disappointments, much has been done by the present session of Congress to improve the situation, and though the time grows late it is likely that additional "career" legislation will be enacted before adjournment.

Then, Congress will go home. Essential legislation will have to be held up until next year. In the interim, however, scores of thousands of men will be making up their minds whether or not to remain in uniform. They will want to know what the Services themselves are doing about career attractiveness.

Because of the heavy increase during the past decade in the number of family men in Service and because of the great attention properly given to problems of morale and family welfare during the last few years, members of the Armed Forces are following closely all developments in these areas.

Thus, they are heartened by reports of progress towards concurrent travel. There is encouragement in studies aimed at reducing to a minimum the transfer of family heads during a school year. Morale goes up—and the reenlistment rate, too—with word of policies designed to raise Non-Com prestige, or others restoring retirement privileges.

This positive approach is contagious. It catches on with the men in the ranks. Assured that the military and civilian leaders, their representatives in Washington, are in there pitching, soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines in the global commands can concentrate on doing the best job they know how.

Ultimately, morale grows best on a foundation of solid achievement—in pride of unit, pride of Service and pride in being a part of the defense team. For this reason, it is essential that military leaders—from the Joint Chiefs to the junior officers and NonComs in the field—emphasize the positive approach to the problem of career attractiveness.

The Air Force's New Command. It may very well be that no Air Force general officer in history will have command over such a vast ex-

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I want to take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the article in a recent issue of THE JOURNAL (19 June) dealing with the Army Chaplaincy, not so much for the kind things that were said of me but for the factual information published concerning the Army religious and character building programs and the work of the chaplains in the field.

It is most fitting that the 179th anniversary of the Chaplaincy on 29 July will find the Army's religious program playing an increasingly important part in the lives of our service personnel. This has been made possible not only because of the general interest in religion but also by the wholehearted and enthusiastic support of Army commanders all along the line.

Marines Salute Proudly

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In the 19 June issue of THE JOURNAL you have a Page 1 story which says, in part: "The Navy and Marine Corps also 'encourage' off-ship or off-base saluting, but it's not mandatory unless an individual commanding officer issues an order, which he is authorized to do. Apparently, some do; some don't."

Marines, sir, have been saluting—and proudly—since 1775. In the Marine Corps the giving and returning of salutes is considered a privilege both on and off a military installation.

Overcoat Problem

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Although there has been a great deal written about the new "green" uniform, its composition, ornamentation, accessories and the time and place to wear it, nothing has been said about an overcoat to go with the new look.

For the past 10-12 years, we have been required to turn out in the green "field coat"—the all purpose trench coat (raincoat, top coat, overcoat, tent, etc.). This coat is a well made and durable, but unsightly garment. In my observation those officers, and recently EM, who left the coat in its original state, in order to use it for field wear, usually presented a sloppy appearance when the coat was worn for dress; if the coat was tailored to present a semi-fitted appearance, then it was too tight for field use.

We have recently been told that the taupe coat is to be the required mind Strategic Air Command to establish the Third Air Division on Guam as a major sub-command, under Brig. Gen. Joseph D. Caldara, USAF. The Third Air Division will control all units formerly under the Korea-inspired Far East Air Forces Bomber Command.

In the next 12 months, there seems little doubt that the major emphasis in shifting military forces as part of the "New Look" strategy planning will be in the Pacific. Hence, the creation of the Pacific Air Force and the new 3d Air Division are seen as particularly significant developments.

As General Smith leaves Washington, he takes with him the esteem of members of the Defense Department and all the Services with whom he has worked, and the best wishes also of his many friends among the press corps, who are wondering if he may not indeed become the Air Force's "saltiest" general.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The fall of Cherbourg 27 June ends the second phase in the campaign of liberation. Twenty days after the initial assault, Allied forces have established a firm beach-head which includes almost the whole of the Contentin Peninsula and a major port.

50 Years Ago—The Navy Department this week entered into an important agreement with the DeForrest Wireless Telegraph Company whereby the Navy obtains control of five exceedingly important wireless stations and a wireless system which, it is believed, will be extremely satisfactory.

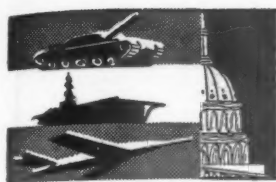

90 Years Ago—The New Ironsides, which arrived at Philadelphia on Friday of last week, has been on duty in Charleston harbor for 18 months, and during that time has participated in 18 engagements, in all of which only one man was killed and one wounded. She was hit 221 times in one engagement. Only two of the shots penetrated her, one at the bow and the other at the stern.

coat for officer dress wear. Again this coat is tailored on civilian lines—in fact is authorized to be worn with civilian clothes. What is the fundamental aversion to requiring that Army personnel wear a proper military overcoat, cut along the lines of the pre-WW II coat? It was warm, dressy, durable and military. Other armies, notably the British, permit officers to wear "trench-coats" of a military design. The AF (probably profiting from observations of the Army) have separated their outer garments, into overcoat and raincoat. The Marines have a similar solution. The past effort on the part of the Army to develop "universal" or utility type garments has resulted in the majority of Army personnel looking like somebody's poor relation.

A great deal of publicity has been released on the opinions of the public, the opinions of the designers, and lastly and latterly, the opinion of the Army, as to what type and color of uniform we would like and under what circumstances they will be worn. I believe I speak for most military personnel when I say that the opinions of the public (non wearers) are of interest, but except for the fact that they are fellow taxpayers, their opinion is not of any great importance. We have to buy the uniform, ensure that it is worn correctly and in some cases endure the amused looks of our fellow brothers in arms, both national and international.

Summing up this rambling sound-off, again I believe that I can speak for most career soldiers, in stating that, we sincerely de-

ON CAPITOL HILL

SENATOR JACKSON (D-Wash.) one of the "judges" in the Army-McCarthy dispute, has been appointed to the Senate Armed Services Committee to fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator Hunt (D-Wyo.). A graduate of the University of Washington Law School, Senator Jackson was first elected to the Congress in 1940 and has served continuously since that time. This is his first term in the Senate.

ATOMIC PROGRESS is so rapid, according to Representative Bender (R-Ohio), that "the question seems to be whether or not mankind will create a world in which the atom can be used to make a better life for everyone before it is used to blow us all to kingdom come."

THE ARMY has asked Congress for authority to appoint an Assistant Chaplain at West Point and to raise the salary of the Chaplain. "The Assistant Chaplain is believed necessary in view of the increase in size of the cadet corps since 1896 and the attendant increase in the duties of the Chaplain," the Army says. The requested legislation also would permit appointment of the two chaplains by the Army Secretary. At present the Chaplain is appointed by the President.

"A HIGHLY TRAINED, mobile, hard-hitting Army, equipped with the latest weapons," is one of the ingredients for American survival according to Chairman Short (R-Mo.) of the House Armed Services Committee, who also called for a "superior Air Force" and "the greatest Navy on earth," in a speech last weekend. He said the U. S. cannot hope to match man for man "the hordes on the Asiatic continent" and therefore must rely on superior weapons and superior skills.

FUNERAL AND BURIAL EXPENSES for Veterans would be increased $100 under the provisions of a bill introduced by Representative Van Zandt (R-Pa.). At present, the maximum amount that may be paid by the Government toward the funeral and burial of deceased veterans is $150. Mr. Van Zandt has asked (HR 9322) that this amount be increased to $250.

PUGET SOUND NAVAL SHIPYARD has earned the congratulations of Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.) for its work in converting the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt. Through a new process, he explained, workers at the shipyard have removed the armor plate of the ship "a full five weeks ahead of schedule."

REVOCATION OF USCOA ELECTIONS would be permitted by a bill introduced by Representative Bennett (D-Fla.). A retired member who made such an election because he was misinformed or because he made a mathematical error in computing the benefits he would derive could revoke the election within 60 days after passage of Mr. Bennett's bill (HR 9302). He would not be entitled, however, to a refund of the amount he had paid in, nor would he again be permitted to make an election under USCOA.

AN INVESTIGATION by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to determine how many WWII veterans currently are employed in jobs for which they were fitted under the GI Bill is authorized in a measure introduced by Representative Teague (D-Tex.).

FLEET ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ will be permitted to take "outside" employment under the terms of a bill favorably reported this week by the House Armed Services Committee. The group amended an 1896 law so as to make it inapplicable to fleet admirals. Although on the active list for life, the Navy's five-star officers will be considered "to be retired" under the bill (HR 7131), and thus eligible for positions with firms doing business with the Government.

MEDAL AWARDS held up or denied because of administrative error or oversight will be permitted to be made regardless of time limits under the terms of HR 9001, approved by the House Armed Services Committee. The bill provides for the awarding of certain medals, crosses and other similar awards in cases where the statement or report recommending the award was not completely processed because of loss or inadvertence.

NEW ACTION ON "REMAINS" BILL

Death transportation benefits for military dependents outside the United States are provided in a bill now nearing final Congressional action.

The measure (S 1999) was approved by the Senate last summer and was favorably reported this week by the House Armed Services Committee.

Designed primarily to codify existing laws which relate to "the care and disposition of remains" of members of the military Services, the measure also will provide a uniform law for all Service personnel, including members of the Coast Guard.

Military dependents who die while abroad or while in a travel status are provided for in a section which broadens present authority by authorizing transportation of their remains from "point of death to place of interment."

Mortuary services and supplies also are authorized for such individuals "on a reimbursable basis" in locations where commercial mortuary facilities and supplies either are not available or available only at a prohibitive cost.

Assistant Secretary Bill Ready for Vote

The two Houses of Congress late this week were in position to run a fast race on one pending Defense Department bill—the measure to create two additional Assistant Secretaries for the Army, Navy and Air Force.

The Senate bill (S 3466), and the House measure (HR 9689) have been favorably reported by the two Armed Services Committees and are now ready to be voted upon.

As previously reported in THE JOURNAL, the plan will give the Defense Department a total of 29 civilians on the top Secretariat.

Each of the Services will create a new Assistant Secretary for Financial Management. In the Navy this official also will be designated as Comptroller. The Army and Air Force will continue their present practice of appointing a military officer as Comptroller and he will be subordinate to the Assistant Secretary.

The three other Assistant Secretaries in each of the Services will specialize in these fields:

Army: Logistics; Manpower and Reserve Forces; and Civil-Military Affairs.

Navy: Air; Personnel and Reserve Forces; and Material.

AF: Manpower, Personnel and Reserve Forces; Materiel; and Research and Development.

Seventh Army Will Be 11 On The 10th, Special Ceremonies Set For Stuttgart

(The current inspection trip to Europe of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens has focused new attention on the U. S. Seventh Army, with which he is spending most of his time overseas. The following special report from Stuttgart tells of plans for celebration of the Seventh's 11th anniversary.)

Stuttgart, Germany — The Seventh U. S. Army, commanded by Lt. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, America's major tactical Army command of the NATO defenses on the western perimeter of freedom, celebrates its 11th birthday at Patch Barracks, home of Seventh Army Headquarters in Stuttgart, Germany, on 10 July.

The Seventh Army was termed "The greatest peacetime striking force of its kind in the world" by then Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., after a tour of the command—it is stronger and more modern today with addition of 280 mm artillery and other equipment.

Seventh Army was "Born at Sea and Baptized in Blood" on 10 July 1943, in the striking words of its first commander, General George S. Patton, Jr. This was on the eve of the invasion of Sicily. On VE day, 8 May 1945, it closed its chapter of combat under its second great battle leader, Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch after rolling from the beaches of Southern France deep into the heart of Nazi Germany. Its battle log carried it more than 1,000 fighting miles in less than 260 days.

Seventh Army withdrew from the European field on 31 March 1946. For a brief span it operated as a State-side Army command until Third US Army returned home in 1947 to take over the Third Army area in the Southeast United States.

The command was reborn 25 Nov. 1950, at Stuttgart, Germany, to assume its present great and challenging international role for peace through power.

Lt. Gen. Manton S. Eddy was its first leader in its new mission and started it on its way to its present strength. It was originally a "two plus" division command with the 1st Infantry Division and the United States Constabulary and reinforcing troops. Today it has two corps, the V and VII, four infantry divisions, one armored division, three regimental combat commands of Armored Cavalry, an AAA brigade, Army and Corps combat and service troops, including the 280 mm artillery units and other elements.

When General Eddy was named C-in-C of Headquarters, US Army in Europe, he was succeeded by General Charles L. Bolte, now Army Vice Chief of Staff, who followed General Eddy as USAREUR Chief later. General Bolte, after continuing the growth and readiness of the command, made this statement after taking his present post in the Pentagon "Without exceeding the limits of security, I can say that Seventh Army can, at any moment, be ready for battle in a fantastically short time."

General Bolte, upon assuming command of USAREUR, was followed by General W. M. Hoge, now USAREUR chief. Its fourth great leader is Lt. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe. Each of the four leaders has built more strength, more battle-readiness, and more deadly efficiency into the huge defense machine, adding latest equipment and training to keep the command in the forefront of modern preparedness trends.

Early in 1951, the command started assuming its present general form. To the 1st Infantry Division and the Constabulary forces (later tailored into Corps combat teams) were added the 4th Infantry Division and the 2d Armored Division. Later in the year, arrival of two fine National Guard divisions, the 28th Infantry Division from Pennsylvania, and the 43rd from New England, took their places in the defense ranks. This year the 28th and 43rd unit designations have been returned to State control and the 5th Infantry and 9th Division have replaced them in the Seventh Army team.

The anniversary of the Army will be marked by unusual ceremonies. Open house will be held from 1130-1200 a mass ceremony around the flag pole will be staged with General McAuliffe speaking. Amplified menus will be served at EM messes and in the afternoon a league baseball game between the Seventh Army Special troops and the 10th THT Group will be played at Allianz Stadium in nearby Vaihingen. A softball league game will follow the baseball game.

In the evening after a special dinner, a variety show will be staged at the Patch (Please turn to Page 1353)

WAFS ARE SIX—The Sixth Anniversary of the organization of the WAF was celebrated at Headquarters, USAFE, with a parade and review. In the reviewing party was Maj. Gen. W. H. Tunner, Commander-in-Chief, USAFE, took the review. With him in the reviewing party were Maj. Gen. Colby M. Myers, Lt. Col. Marie L. Ray, WAF Staff Director, USAFE, Lt. Col. Mary L. Milligan, WAC Staff Advisor, USAREUR, Maj. Gen. T. R. Rampey, Maj. Gen. Lewis R. Parker, Brig. Gen. Royden E. Beebe, Jr., Col. Myles W. Brewster, Col. Robert W. Elliott, and Col. Robert C. Hopsack.

MEMO*News And Gossip
For Journal Readers*

FEW PEOPLE REALIZE IT—even at top Pentagon offices—but the present members of the JCS are not serving for any specified periods of time. When they were appointed last year, it was believed the terms would be set officially at 2 years. A White House press release mentioned that tour.

SECDEF WILSON ADDED at a news conference last May that the policy of appointing Chiefs of Staff and the Chief of Naval Operations had been changed from four years to two years. So, everyone thought the two-year tour, subject to extension, was set.

THIS ISN'T SO. It's now learned that the actual commissions given to the Chiefs, as well as to the JCS Chairman, specify no expiration date whatsoever. Thus, they serve at the pleasure of the Commander-in-Chief: for two years as suggested in the White House press release and Pentagon news conference; for more than two years in the case of Gens. Ridgway and Twining and Adm. Carney; or for less than two years. It's up to the President.

THE JCS CHAIRMAN, according to the National Security Act as amended, is appointed for a term of 2 years and may be reappointed once, except that in time of war he may retain the position beyond that.

THE ARMY ORGANIZATION ACT of 1950—Public Law 581, 81st Congress, says the CofS serves during the pleasure of the President for a term of not more than 4 years: P.L. 150, 82d Congress is similar for the Air Force; and the 4-year limit on one tour is set for the CNO in 5 U.S. Code 233b.

ARMY SEC'Y STEVENS will take a vacation upon return in mid-July from his current European inspection trip. He reiterated this week to the meeting of Army Civilian Aides at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., that he will stay on the job, as long as the President wants him to head the Army.

AT FT. LEAVENWORTH, Mr. Stevens went into detail regarding his motivation as a result of the treatment accorded General Zwicker by Senator McCarthy. In his presentation, the Secretary quoted from a predecessor, Henry L. Stimson, who said: "The pearl of highest price for a democracy at war is well placed confidence in its military leadership. It thus becomes the duty of the Secretary of War to support, protect and defend his generals."

POCKET VETO apparently is being used by SecDef Wilson in the matter of transferring SCARWAF personnel (about 35,000) from the Army to the Air Force. Months ago, the proposal, which had been agreed to by the Army and Air Force Secretaries, was slated for quick implementation.

THE UNEXPECTED DELAY results apparently from Defense Dept. fears that the separation could result in extra costs and duplication of activities. Meantime, however, Mr. Wilson has not indicated that he is for the plan or against it. Late this week, it was still on his desk.

RESERVE UNITS during summer training this year will undertake numerous specialized projects. An example: the 348th Pipeline Engr. Co.—there are only 3 like it in the entire Reserve—has built a "tank farm" and five miles of pipeline to be used by classes at the Ft. Lee, Va., Quartermaster School.

A MAJOR TEST, which could have a powerful impact on Army combat organization, will be launched this fall when 1 armored division, probably the 1st Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex., and 1 infantry division, will be set up as "experimental" units. Army planners say they will be trained along new lines. Following intensive training with use of new techniques, they will be put through a series of rugged tests next Spring.

OBJECT IS to find out what type organization is best to meet the requirements of an atomic era. Guiding the planning for the experiment is Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, G-3.

WITH 19 DIVISIONS now on the active rolls, one of them (4th Armored) just getting started and slated to drop 2 more in FY '55, the Army probably would prefer not to upset the combat readiness of two other divisions for the organization tests. That this will be done is an indication of the concern now felt that Army divisions may need major overhauling.

A SCHOLARSHIP PLAN whereby the Defense Dept. would underwrite the education of medical students in return for guaranteed years of service was endorsed months ago by SecDef Wilson. Medical and dental students would get free tuition and an allowance of $133 a month. Notwithstanding the high-level Pentagon backing, the bill has yet to clear the Budget Bureau.

ALSO STUCK AT THE BOB, and consequently doomed for legislative action this year, is the Army's plan to add 4000 Reserve officers to the Regular Establishment. This proposal is a carry-over from last year, now probably will go forward to be included in the Pentagon's '55 legislative program.

ARMY ENGINEERS reversed the Army budget trend in at least one respect for fiscal '55. While the Army overall was taking a cut of about $5 billion from '54 funds, the Engineers were given $436 million for Civil Works—a boost of about $13 million over the last fiscal year.

MORE THAN 1250 Regular Army officers have applied for resignation in the past 8 months—a large number of them medical officers. Army officials are hopeful that the resignations reflect a backlog and that they will taper off considerably.

PHONE CALL BILLS are going up in connection with Atomic-Age defense requirements. The Ground Observer Corps now spends $5 million per year in communication tolls.

AIR MOBILITY TESTS are being conducted under supervision of the Central Army Antiaircraft Command, headed by Col. Donald J. Bailey, Arty, to determine loading factors for airlifting new AAA weapons. Belief is that one C-124 can airlift two 10-ton Skysweeper guns with allied equipment and crews for distances of approximately 1000 miles. Test runs are being made at Ellsworth AFB, S. D.

A FORMER USMA COACH has been assigned duty at Notre Dame. He is Col. C. J. Letzelter, who handled the backfield at West Point from 1939 to 1943. Until recently a regimental commander at Ft. Riley, Kans., he will be top Army ROTC instructor at South Bend.

Col.'s Daughter Wins National Essay Contest

Arial Kinard, 16-year-old daughter of Col. and Mrs. William H. Kinard, Jr., Director of Psychological Operations Department of the Psychological Warfare School, Ft. Bragg, N. C., has been named first prize winner in a national essay contest sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Her essay, "What America Means To Me," was selected the best from 50,000 entries. Her prize is an expense-paid visit to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

Born in Honolulu, Miss Kinard has attended nine different schools. She is a straight "A" student, as are her two brothers, Bill, 14, and Chris, 12. After she completes high school, Miss Kinard hopes to attend Radcliffe College. She is thinking about teaching or nursing as a possible career after her school days.

Navy Chooses T-34 As New Primary Trainer

The Navy has selected the Beechcraft T-34 as its new primary training plane for students in the Naval Air Training Command.

The craft, currently in production as an Air Force trainer, will be used for the first 70 hours of flying, including primary night flying and acrobatics.

The Navy's present basic trainer, the North American T-28B, will be used as a second step in student training. The combination of the two planes will eventually phase out the North American SNJ trainer which has been used for flight training since 1940.

The changeover to the T-34 is expected to result in savings of millions of dollars in the Navy's overall training program costs. The unit cost of the plane is relatively low, and the per hour cost of flying the plane is a fraction of the present cost using heavier equipment. An initial order for several hundred T-34's has been placed with Beechcraft.

The two-place tandem trainer is powered by a 225-horsepower Continental engine and has a top speed of 189 miles per hour. Gross takeoff weight is about 2900 pounds. The low-wing all-metal plane has a fully retractable tricycle landing gear.

Search for a new primary trainer began last July when the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics invited manufacturers of light aircraft to submit data on their models. Three planes, including the T-34, were eventually selected for thorough testing in actual student training at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla. From this group, the Navy ultimately decided on the T-34.

Four Helicopter Awards

The United States Navy, a representative of the Civil Aeronautics Board, and two leading helicopter industry figures received awards 24 June from the American Helicopter Society at the Society's 10th Annual Honors Night Dinner held at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C. The four awards were presented for outstanding achievements in the helicopter field.

The U. S. Navy was the recipient of the Captain William J. Kossler Award for "Antisubmarine Warfare Operations during 1953" in which the Navy led the world in the development and use of rotary-wing aircraft for the detection and destruction of underwater craft. RADM. Clarence E. Ekstrom, USN, Assistant Chief, Bureau of Aeronautics, accepted the award on behalf of the U. S. Navy from Mr. Thomas R. Pierpoint, Chairman of the Awards Committee of the American Helicopter Society. The Captain Kossler award was established by the American Helicopter Society in 1946 to honor the memory of Captain Kossler (1896-1945), U. S. Coast Guard aviator, aeronautical engineer and early advocate of helicopters for Coast Guard operations, and is awarded each year for the "greatest achievement in practical application or operation of rotary-wing aircraft, the value of which has been demonstrated in actual service during the preceding year."

The Dr. Alexander Klemin award was presented to Mr. Michael Gluhareff, chief engineer of Sikorsky Aircraft, for "notable achievement in the advancement of rotary-wing aeronautics." Mr. Gluhareff received the Klemin plaque from Society president Lefever in recognition of his many years of outstanding work in helicopter design and development. The Dr. Klemin Award, which is made each year by the Society, was established in 1951 by Frank N. Piasecki to honor the memory of Dr. Klemin, eminent aeronautical engineer, educator, author, and outstanding pioneer in rotary-wing aeronautics, who died in 1950.

President Lefever also presented Honorary Fellowships in the American Helicopter Society to Mr. Ferdinand Moran, Civil Aeronautics Board examiner; and to Mr. Floyd Carlson, chief test pilot of Bell Aircraft's helicopter division.

Mr. Moran received the Fellowship for his work as examiner of the three existing scheduled helicopter operations (Los Angeles Airways, Los Angeles; Helicopter Air Service, Chicago, and New York Airways, New York) and, in particular, for the exceptional importance of his work to the furtherance of the commercial helicopter industry.

Mr. Carlson received the Fellowship in recognition of his contributions to the advancement of the helicopter art through his years of helicopter flight test and development activities.

Air Force Creates New Pacific Command And Assigns Gen. Smith As Its Chief

Headquarters at Tokyo.

Creation of the new command and the appointment of General Smith to head it is linked to the stepped-up Air Force activity throughout the Pacific.

The Air Force's new Information Chief, General Allen, won renown on Pearl Harbor Day as one of two B-17 pilots to take off from Hickam Field while it was under attack.

General Allen assumed command of the Fifth Bomb Group, Seventh Air Force at Guadalcanal, in September, 1942, and retained command when it was transferred to the 13th Air Force early in 1943.

In August, 1943, General Allen was appointed deputy for operation and training of the Second Air Force at Colorado Springs, Colorado, which trained the majority of bombardment crews for overseas duty and had charge of all B-29 training.

General Allen assumed command of the 20th Bomb Wing at Colorado Springs in August 1945. A month later he entered the Command and General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. Upon graduation in March, 1946, he was appointed deputy commander of the North Atlantic Wing of Air Transport Command, with station at Westover Field, Mass. He became chief of staff to the Air Force representative on the United Nations Miltary Staff Committee at New York City in July, 1946.

Two years later, General Allen was transferred to Air Force Headquarters as chief of the Air Estimates Branch in the Directorate of Intelligence. In July 1949 he was named chief of the Strategic Vulnerability Branch in that directorate, and in March 1950 became chief of its Air Targets Division. In March 1951 he was appointed commander of the Air Pictorial Service in the Directorate of Public Relations at Air Force Headquarters.

In January 1952 he moved with the Air Pictorial Service, which had become a separate command, to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. It was redesignated the Air Photographic and Charting Service in April 1952 with General Allen retaining command.

In September 1952 he became Chief of Staff, Military Air Transport Service, Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland.

General Allen has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal, Army Commendation Ribbon with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Navy Presidential Citation, Purple Heart, and the Chinese Cloud Banner Decoration. He is rated a command pilot, combat observer, and aircraft observer.

General and Mrs. Allen have two daughters, Toni and Nicki.

SecNav and CNO Visit Atomic Reactor Plant Following Statement On A-Sub Expansion

The dry-land version of the first atomic submarine was inspected last week-end by the top bosses of the Navy.

Following a Defense Department announcement of plans for an expanded A-sub program in the coming months, Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas and Admiral Robert B. Carney, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, traveled to Arco, Idaho, to visit the atomic reactor plant. It was at Arco that the test engine of the atomic sub recently completed a simulated cross-Atlantic run.

The two senior officials of the Navy were accompanied by RADM. H. G. Rickover, USN, Chief of the Naval Reactor Branch of the Atomic Energy Commission.

At a press conference in Idaho Falls, Admiral Carney told newsmen he is "completely and wholeheartedly behind nuclear propulsion for our ships." He added that he sees "no limitations to its possibilities."

Only recently Defense Secretary Wilson announced plans to step up the program for nuclear submarines. The Defense Secretary told members of Congress that the expansion is necessary "in order to meet the anticipated demand for this type craft in the near future."

Prior to passage of the new military budget, the Navy revised its shipbuilding program to include two new atomic submarines in addition to the Nautilus and Sea Wolf. The former has been completed and will go to sea "this fall" Admiral Carney said.

He also noted during the Arco visit that development of the A-sub program "is receiving the highest priority of interest in the Navy."

Admiral Rickover, who has been credited with a major share in development of the A-sub, was praised by Secretary Thomas for "his excellent leadership in the atomic field."

Also accompanying the Secretary and the CNO were their aides: Capt. Carleton B. Jones and Capt. William G. Marshall.

sire a smart, practical uniform, which we could expect to be stabilized for an appreciable period. Although the officer personnel will get hit twice, (taxes to pay for EM initial issue and personal cost for their uniform) at least they can buy with confidence that their investment may be fully realized. One last word—positive action should be taken to ensure that individuals and tailors will be barred from modifying the adopted uniform to suit their personal ideas on what looks sharp!

LT. COL., GS

Warrant Officer Role

Editor, THE JOURNAL,

In the issue of the "Journal," dated 5 June 1954, there is included an editorial entitled "W. O. Justice at Last."

The final statement made in this editorial tends to preclude the credit due to myself and Col. Howard C. Bronson, former chief of the Army Music Branch, now retired, for presenting to the Committee on Armed Services of the United States Senate, during the hearing held on 20 April, on H.R. #6384 (Warrant Officer Act of 1954), why there is urgent need for an amendment which would assure the warrant officers of the National Guard and the Reserve components of each Service, adequate provision for the attainment of maximum retirement benefits.

If you will kindly read over the statements made by Colonel Bronson and myself during the hearing, as well as to refer to Calendar No. 1287 (Report No. 1284), 7 May 1954, you will note that, as a result of the intercession of Colonel Bronson and myself, the Committee amended the bill to provide that, "... male Regular and Reserve officers who upon attaining the age of sixty-two has completed less than 20 years of active service may be deferred by the Secretary until he completes twenty years of active service, but not later than that date which is 60 days after the date on which he attains the age of sixty-four, * * * * * (c) except as provided in clause (3) of subsection b, and subsection g, of this section, each warrant officer shall be retired or separated not later than sixty days after the date on which he attains the age of sixty-two in a male warrant officer." The basic purpose of H.R. 6374 is to provide a statutory career plan for warrant officers in the Armed Forces, which will be similar in many respects to the plan now in effect for Regular commissioned officers under the Officer Personnel Act, of 1947.

Although our primary interest in this matter pertained to the band leaders of the National Guard and of the Reserves, the benefits of our intercession will accrue to all warrant officers of the civilian components of our National Defense System. Therefore, it is felt that your editorial statement should be amended to provide credit to us for the service thus rendered.

Army Daughters Chapter At Ft. Benning Gives Almost $4000 To Post Activities

■ FT. BENNING, GA. The local chapter, Daughters of the U. S. Army, disbursed a total of $3,967.21 to various post organizations during this past fiscal year, it is announced by Mrs. DeBow Freed, incoming president. Mrs. C. R. Sniffen was president for the past year.

The post organizations receiving the largest amounts of money were the Girl Scouts, who were given a check for $1,000 to be used in building their troop camp site, and the Main Post Hospital which received a total of $1,347.86.

This organization, which was begun at Ft. Benning in 1928, was originally a social group set up to provide a way for daughters and granddaughters of Regular Army officers to keep up with their childhood friends who, due to marriage or returning to civilian life, were unable to keep contact with each other. Since that time, however, many chapters have been formed at other posts in this country and abroad, and the organization has become a charitable institution, whose purpose is to give money to worthwhile organizations on the posts.

A little over a decade ago, the Ft. Benning chapter began its annual "49'er Party," held every spring as the main money-raising project of the year. This year, the party was held on 5 March with Capt. and Mrs. W. R. Guthrie in charge. The largest clear profit ever earned from the party was attained in the amount of $1,500.31.

As its other money-raising project, the Ft. Benning chapter conducts bingo bi-monthly at the Main Officers' Club. With the money taken in by these two projects this year, the organization was able to give this large sum to the post organizations.

The post hospital, which received the bulk of the amount, is the group's main project. Included in the more than $1,300 dollars it received this year was $500 towards the purchase of a badly needed cardiograph machine, and $222.86 for instruments. Fifty dollars is given each month as supplement for maintenance of the women's and children's wards, and $75 worth of curtains were donated to the Ob-Gyn Clinic.

The Ft. Benning kindergarten received $153; the chaplain's section, $250; the post nursery school, $325; and $341.35 went to the nursery in the Battle Park housing development located just off the post. Also included in this year's donations were $100 to the Outpost Information Center, and $50 to the widow of an American soldier killed in Korea.

A scholarship fund was set up by the Ft. Benning chapter this year amounting to $400. The winner of the scholarship was announced at the May meeting as Ellen Mifflin, daughter of Colonel Mifflin. Runner-up was Beth Ballard, daughter of Sergeant Ballard.

New officers serving with Mrs. Freed are Mrs. William Sibert, vice president; Mrs. David D. Garrison, secretary, and Mrs. D. V. Rattan, treasurer. Retiring with Mrs. Sniffen were Mrs. William Hathaway, vice president; Mrs. Walter H. Root, Jr., who took over the unexpired term of Mrs. George Millener, Jr., as secretary, and Mrs. Arthur Underwood, treasurer.

Miss Owen's School Moved From S. F. to Washington

Miss Laura Francis Owen, who for over 30 years conducted a private tutoring school in San Francisco for young men preparing to enter military institutes and universities, is now operating a school at 7133—7th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

During her years of teaching in California, Miss Owen's School tutored several hundred young men who later were graduated from West Point and Annapolis.

She stresses mathematics, insisting that history tells of many cases where death could have been averted on the battlefield had the soldier had a better command of that subject.

Her school is set up to teach any subject, often employing outside instructors. Only one pupil is assigned to an instructor at a time, thus insuring private and individual instruction. Miss Owen's interest in military life and subjects began in 1917, when as a YWCA worker in France, she supervised manufacture of shoulder insignia for divisions.

Obituaries

Capt. Dora E. Thompson, ANC-Ret.

Capt. Dora E. Thompson, ANC-Ret., Superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps from 1914 to 1919 and recipient of the Distinguished Service Medal for service in WWI, died 23 June in Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif. She was 77 years of age.

Funeral ceremonies were conducted 26 June in the chapel of The Presidio and interment was in Arlington Cemetery in Washington, D. C.

Captain Thompson had spent most of her life in San Francisco, including the 22 years since her retirement in October 1932 and three duty tours as chief nurse of Letterman Army Hospital. She was the fourth superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps and served under Maj. Gen. William C. Gorgas, the then Surgeon General of the Army.

Born in New York City, Captain Thompson was graduated in 1897 from the New York City Training School for Nurses. She entered the Army Nurse Corps in 1902, the year following its founding, and in a few years had won promotion to the rating of chief nurse through her administrative ability. During her first assignment at Letterman Army Hospital, Captain Thompson had her first experience with mass casualties as the aftermath of the San Francisco earthquake and fire in April 1906. Hundreds of injured men, women and children were brought to Letterman, which had escaped the holocaust, and Captain Thompson met the situation so well she was given an Army commendation.

In 1911 Captain Thompson was transferred to the Philippines for her first overseas station and remained there until late 1913. Her return trip to the United States was made by way of Europe and she landed in New York in February 1914. Soon she was again at Letterman, giving that hospital, in the terms of its commanding officer, "the smoothest and best conducted nursing service of any Army hospital in the country."

This assignment was interrupted a few months later when Captain Thompson was ordered to Washington, D. C. to be sworn in as superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps on 22 Sept. 1914.

At the time Captain Thompson assumed her duties as superintendent, the Corps had several hundred members. Military rank had not been conferred as yet. Before the Armistice was signed on 11 Nov. 1918 Captain Thompson had recruited and assigned to duty, 21,480 nurses in Europe, Asia and the United States, with such effectiveness she was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal.

Among the energetic measures she sponsored for meeting the obligations of providing adequate nursing care for American troops was the establishment of the Army School of Nursing for training much needed professional personnel. She acted as consultant to Miss Anne Goodrich, civilian educator who organized and served as first dean of the school.

Captain Thompson resigned the superintendency in 1919 and was transferred to the Philippine Department as assistant superintendent of the Corps, in charge of nursing service at Army hospitals in the Philippines, Siberia and China. Upon granting of relative military rank to the Nurse Corps in 1920, she was given serial number "2," number "1" being held by Maj. Julia Stimson, the then superintendent of the Corps.

At the close of her second Philippine tour, Captain Thompson returned to Letterman Army Hospital where she was chief nurse at the time of her retirement in 1932. From that date until her death her chief pleasure was welcoming her Army Nurse Corps friends to her home at 455 Marina Boulevard, San Francisco.

Captain Thompson is survived by a sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna Thompson of Media, Pa., and two nephews, John Thompson, also of Media and William H. Thompson of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif.

Capt. John R. Weaver

Capt. John Rex Weaver died at his home in Glendale, Calif., 13 June after a long illness. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors.

Captain Weaver enlisted in the Canadian Army in August 1914 and rose to the rank of captain. He was wounded in action four times. After the entry of the United States in WW I, Captain Weaver transferred to the AEF and fought with the 1st Division until the conclusion of the war.

Surviving are two brothers, Lt. Col. W. K. Weaver, jr., USA-Ret., of Baltimore, Md., and M. K. Weaver of Glendale, and one sister, Mrs. Margaret W. Scoville of Glendale; also eight nieces and nephews including Capt. Robert K. Weaver, JAG.

Mrs. Lewis S. Sorley

Mrs. Nan L. M. Sorley, wife of Col. Lewis S. Sorley, USA-Ret., of 819 Montgomery Avenue, Bryn Mawr, Pa., died 16 June after a brief illness at the Valley Forge Army Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa. She was 78.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons: Col. Lewis S. Sorley, jr., of Albuquerque, N. M.; Col. Merrow E. Sorley of Ft. Belvoir, Va.; by two daughters: Mrs. Frederick B. Lyon of Paris, France, and Mrs. Nan S. Volkmann of Washington, D. C.; by a sister, Mrs. Jane M. Currie of 1365 Wilson Ave., Fresno, Calif., and by six grandchildren.

Interment was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Versatile AF Pilots Make Global Delivery

ly, pilots, upon delivering an aircraft to its destination, will receive orders from the Ferrying Control Center, directing them to another pick-up point to make another delivery. This system saves invaluable time and money.

From pickup point to delivery point, the pilots of the 1708th, in addition to being skilled in flying many types of aircraft, must of necessity make many decisions with which the average pilot, in his daily routine flying, is never confronted. Because he is seldom operating out of his own base, the pilot must arrange for his own maintenance support. He must have sufficient mechanical knowledge of his aircraft to determine whether or not it is in flyable condition since he is frequently flying through areas where little or no maintenance assistance is available.

The pilot's own ingenuity and resourcefulness often spell the difference between a successful mission and a "bogged-down" delivery. A good case in point is that of the 1708th pilot who was ferrying an L-16 Aeronca "Champion" from San Marcos, Texas, to San Juan, Puerto Rico. When the pilot reached Miami, Fla., a severe area of bad weather threatened to halt his overwater flight to his island destination. However, through his initiative, he located a C-119 "Flying Boxcar" going in the same direction. After receiving a quick approval from Group Headquarters, the pilot loaded his little aircraft, with wings removed, aboard the C-119 and the delivery was accomplished without further delay.

The value of this system of delivering aircraft lies in the unity of purpose which was effected by establishing one organization with the responsibility of meeting the currently increasing requirement of moving aircraft which the Air Force is faced with today.

Gen. Farnsworth Leaves

AMC for OSD Pentagon Dty.

Brig. Gen. William P. Farnsworth, USAF, chief of the Air Materiel Command's Procurement Division, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, has been transferred to the Pentagon for duty in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Supply and Logistics).

In his new assignment, which became effective 1 July, General Farnsworth will be Assistant Staff Director of Purchasing and Contracting Policies. He has been chief of AMC's Procurement Division, which is responsible for purchasing billions of dollars worth of Air Force supplies and equipment annually, since April 1953. He was assigned to Headquarters AMC as chief of the Quality Control division shortly after he was promoted to rank of brigadier general in September 1952.

He was succeeded on 1 June by Brig. Gen. Clyde H. Mitchell, who has been Deputy Chief of the Procurement Division since May 1952.

Prior to coming to Headquarters AMC, General Farnsworth was commander of the former Northeastern Air Procurement District, Boston, for a year and a half.

The general entered the Armed Forces in January 1943. He formerly was a practicing attorney in New York City. He is a member of the bar in the State of New York, Federal Court, and the U. S. Supreme Court, and has been admitted to practice before the U. S. Treasury Department and the U. S. Tax Court. He also was a member of the national panels of the American Arbitration Association in New York City, where he served on both industrial and commercial panels handling industrial disputes and business differences.

Gen. Persons At Randolph

Brig. Gen. John W. Persons, USAF, has assumed duties as base commander at Randolph AFB, Tex., and commander of the 3510th Flying Training Wing.

He replaces Brig. Gen. James H. Davies, USAF, who has been transferred to Keesler AFB, Miss.

General Persons' last post was deputy director of personnel procurement and training in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, at Air Force Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

4400th Gets Two RB-57's

The first two of seven RB-57's, the Air Force's new jet light reconnaissance bomber, have been delivered to the 4400th Tactical Bombardment Group, Langley Field, Va.

The twin-engined light jets will eventually replace the Group's piston-driven B-26's.

The B-57 is the Air Force version of the British "Canberra."

Lt. Col. Kersey To Iran

Lt. Col. S. P. Kersey was scheduled to leave Ft. Benning, Ga., in late June for an assignment with the U. S. Military Mission to Iran. He has been executive officer of the Staff Department's Intelligence Group at The Infantry School.

$2 Billion In New Money Slated For Naval Air Procurement In Fiscal '55

Almost $2 billion in new money for Naval aircraft and guided-missile procurement has been approved by both the House and Senate in the '55 Defense budget now under final conference study.

Up to $10 million of the funds can be used by the Navy to expand private plants.

RAdm. Apollo Soucek, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, has said procurement planning for the next 12 months "centers largely around carrier-type jet aircraft for Navy and Marine combat squadrons." About $123 million will go into procurement of aircraft specifically programed as part of the new continental air defense plan.

Of the total aircraft to be purchased by the Navy, all but 79 will be combat types and "all without exception are high-performance aircraft that will substantially improve our operational capabilities," Admiral Soucek states.

RAdm. Soucek

Almost $37 million will go into the procurement of guided missiles, drones and related equipment, and more than $116 million is slated for tactical equipment for the three Marine air wings and deployable fleet units, cameras and photographic equipment for Naval Aviation, subsurface submarine detection devices, operational flight trainers to complement new aircraft models, and specialized equipment for the launching and landing of aircraft aboard carriers.

Commercial contracts amounting to more than $28 million will be let by the Navy for aircraft overhaul. Admiral Soucek said older service aircraft will be converted "to provide the fleet with improved transport aircraft, training aircraft, target drones and guided missile control aircraft."

The transport conversion program includes $25 million to provide for the conversion of nine R6D-1 aircraft to give them longer-range capabilities and greater safety-of-flight characteristics. Training aircraft will be converted to provide flying radar classroom configurations, and missile launching capabilities will be installed in a limited number of service aircraft.

Additionally, about $14 million is budgeted to provide older service planes with improved electronic equipments.

AF Orders Undisclosed Number of Super Connies

The Air Force has ordered an undisclosed number of Super Constellation turbo-compound transport planes of multi-convertible military design from Lockheed Aircraft Corporation.

Designated model C121-C by the Air Force, the new Super Constellations are destined for use by MATS as personnel-cargo-evacuation transports.

Deliveries will begin in mid-1955, and will move production of the Constellations well into the following year at Lockheed.

The new aircraft will be used primarily as personnel carriers. They can seat 106 persons, or hold 73 litters plus hospital attendants, or carry more than 15 tons of cargo.

Built for long-range, high-speed performance, the new Super Constellations have a 2600-mile range with full military payload of cargo, or a 3570-mile range with a 20,000-pound payload. They can ferry non-stop more than 4400 miles, and average a cruising speed at maximum cruise power at more than 330 miles per hour.

The new C121-C features the latest intercommunications equipment, thunderstorm floodlighting for instrument panels, pressure locks for cargo doors, improved soundproofing, newest Air Force radio installation, indirect lighting for the flight engineer's instrument panels, and 34 large commercial-airliner-type windows.

FORMOSA TO NORFOLK

Capt. Robert W. Poindexter, USAF, has reported for duty as Assistant Petroleum Officer at Headquarters of Adm. Jerauld Wright, USN, Commander in Chief, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, based at Norfolk, Va.

Previously, Captain Poindexter acted as petroleum advisor to the Chinese Nationalists while serving with the Military Advisory Group on Formosa.

Store Tools At Custer

A contract for the preparation and storage of machine tools at Ft. Custer, Mich., has been signed by the Detroit Ordnance District with Commercial Contracting Corporation, Detroit.

DOUBLE ENTRY AF

The Nation will have a "double entry" Air Force as of 1 July.

On that date, the Air Force will install on a world-wide basis a complete commercial type double entry account system including all assets, liabilities, revenue and expenses on an accrual basis.

It will be used everywhere except at Langley AFB, Va., Lockbourne AFB, Ohio, and McChord AFB, Wash., where texts are in progress on different systems.

USN Reveals 'Copter Advances

The Navy has revealed two developments in the helicopter field.

One is a system of propulsion, making use of tiny rocket engines on the blade tips of a midget helicopter. The other is a new system for the stability and control of helicopters.

Both are research projects on separate phases of helicopter development for the Navy.

The first U. S. rocket-powered helicopter, the RH-1, was developed by the Rotor-Craft Corporation, Glendale, Calif. The rocket system for the tiny, one-man craft uses two thumb-size motors at the tip ends of the helicopter blades. As project "Pinwheel" it has been under development for nearly four years, and first flew under tethered tests in mid-1953.

The second research project has been under development by the Kellett Aircraft Corporation, Camden, N. J. The Kellett KH-15, which is also rocket powered, flew recently after only eight minutes of tethered test. The KH-15 has incorporated gyro-stabilizing controls designed to give helicopters greater stability; vibration has been cut considerably.

Rocket motors for both craft were built by Reaction Motors, Inc., Rockaway, N. J.

Col. Bumen 6th Army QM

Col. Louis G. Bumen, has been named Quartermaster of the Sixth Army at the Presidio of San Francisco.

A veteran of WW II, Colonel Bumen also served in Korea. He went to Korea in 1951 as commander of the Sixth Quartermaster Group and deputy commander of the 55th Quartermaster Depot at Pusan. He remained in Korea until March, 1952, when he was assigned to the Presidio of San Francisco with the Sixth Army Quartermaster Section.

Sea Duty Clarification

The Coast Guard has clarified its recent policy under which certain sea duty requirements were set up as a condition to advancement to the rate of chief petty officer.

A detailed explanation of the sea duty requirements appeared in THE JOURNAL of 22 May.

It is not anticipated, Coast Guard Headquarters said, that many advancements to CPO (P) in other than BM and EN ratings will be made in the next several months. It is likely, therefore, that only the top men on the eligibility lists need to be given priority in assignment to sea duty, in order to meet the new requirement.

While Headquarters desires all men to meet the requirement, the fulfillment of the requisite is not deemed to be of import great enough to warrant the serious disruption of normal district operations by moving large numbers of men in order to provide them an opportunity to qualify.

Under the original policy, when a man's name came up for advancement and he did not meet the sea duty requirement, his name was ordinarily passed over. Since the institution of the policy, however, the Coast Guard has realized that there may be isolated cases in which this concrete policy would not justly apply.

In such cases, if it can be shown that a man fails to meet the requirement through no fault of his own, a report by the individual's commanding officer should be made to the Commandant (PE). The report should set forth in detail the reasons why the man has been unable to qualify himself, and contain a definite recommendation as to whether it is felt that the sea duty requirement should be waived.

Each case will be considered on its own merits and, if warranted by circumstances beyond the individual's control, a waiver of the sea duty requirement will be granted.

Cdr. Harned At Hqs.

Cdr. A. E. Harned, USCG, has reported to Coast Guard Headquarters as Chief of the Performance and Evaluation Section of the Office of Operations.

He was Chief of Search and Rescue, 13th Coast Guard District, Seattle, Washington.

A graduate of the USCG Academy, Commander Harned received his wings at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., in 1937. From 1938-40 he served at the Coast Guard Air Station, St. Petersburg, Fla., where he was commended for making the longest rescue flight (1150 miles) ever made at that time. The flight was made round trip from the Air Station to San Salvador Island in a PH-2 Hall Flying Boat.

During WW II, serving as air-sea-rescue liaison officer for the Southwest Pacific area with the U. S. Navy's 7th Fleet, he was awarded the Bronze Star.

Pentagon Officials Disappointed by Delay In Winning Approval for New Army Green

Pentagon officials were disappointed this week when the Senate Military Appropriations Subcommittee failed to give its expected nod to the Army's new Green uniform.

The Army has been ready for several weeks to announce preliminary plans for integrating the new garb but has been unable to act pending final go-ahead from the Senate Subcommittee and its Chairman, Homer Ferguson (R-Mich.).

It had been believed the Senate group would endorse the Army Green at a meeting on 1 July, particularly in view of the fact that the uniform had won earlier approval of Senator Styles Bridges (R-N. H.), who is Chairman of the full Appropriations Committee.

It is understood that Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass.), Chairman of the Armed Services Committee is urging his colleague from Michigan to approve the Army's uniform plans.

Late this week it appeared likely that Senator Ferguson's Subcommittee would not reconsider the uniform plans until the middle of this month.

Army officials were prepared to give a detailed briefing on the uniform at the 1 July meeting, but at the last moment the Subcommittee cancelled this item from the agenda.

It has been reported previously that the Army would like to begin issue of the Green uniform to soldiers in the Fall of 1955. An 18-month lead-time is necessary for procurement of cloth and its manufacture into uniforms.

Contingent upon final Capitol approval, the Army probably will authorize its officers to buy the Green uniform on an optional basis beginning early in 1955.

NGA Sets Conference

More than 2,000 persons are expected to attend the National Guard Association's 76th General Conference 18-21 October in Miami, Fla.

General plans for the meeting are being blocked out by Maj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, President, and Adjutant General Mark W. Lance. Further details will be worked out by the Florida Conference Committees, with general arrangements in the hands of Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Kelly, (ret.).

Lt. Col. Charles H. Schrader has been named 1st Armored Division G-2 at Ft. Hood, Tex. He succeeds Lt. Col. Armistead R. Harper, who has assumed command of the Division's 4th Tank Battalion.

NEW PATROL BOMBER—First production model of the Navy's new water-based patrol plane, the Martin P5M-2 Marlin, cruises over land as Navy pilots familiarize themselves with the plane's characteristics. The first of an undisclosed number was delivered on 23 June. Designed and built by the Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md., the P5M-2 is powered by two Curtiss-Wright Turbo-Compound Engines, each developing 3,450 horsepower. The new model will eventually supplant the P5M-1's now in operational service with the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets.

Significant changes in the plant utilize a new high "T" tail for better control at low airspeeds and during water maneuvers. The bow on the new model resembles that of a speedboat, causing water spray to be thrown to the sides rather than back toward the engines and the control surfaces. This increases propeller life and permits takeoffs in heavy seas at a higher gross weight.

Gen. McGaw Reports On Korea Logistical Support Activities

rean civil population and its economy and welfare.

The Korean Communications Zone was activated July 11, 1952, and became operational early in August of that year as one of the two major commands in Korea operating under United States Army Forces, Far East. The other was the Eighth U. S. Army. Prior to July 11, 1952, Eighth Army had the responsibility for all military activities and operations south of the front lines. KComZ was established as a separate command "to provide logistical and administrative support" and to exercise "territorial control in support of combat operations in Korea."

The area controlled by KComZ comprises the length of the South Korean peninsula, extending southward from a boundary line somewhere north of the 37th parallel, and all islands in that general area. In addition, KComZ operates all ports in UN-held Korea, including Incheon and Sokcho-ri, which are located geographically in the Eighth Army area. All highways and railroad facilities, as well as military shipping within Korean territorial waters, are likewise administered and maintained by KComZ.

KComZ's top priority operation is the procuring, importing and delivery of supplies to the fighting forces. This includes food, clothing, vehicles, fuel, weapons, ammunition, armament and thousands of other items used by the Armed Forces in Korea.

To facilitate its huge operations, KComZ has four major subordinate commands located throughout its vast area of responsibility. They are Pusan, Incheon, and Taegu Military Posts, and the 3rd Transportation Railway Command.

Pusan Military Post, under Brigadier General Richard S. Whitcomb, is the hub of the supply operation for Korea. This sub-command operates the many port facilities—the complicated system of transport ships, loading barges, docks, warehouses, and loading and shipping areas. Tonnage handled during the war made Pusan one of the world's busiest ports.

Incheon Military Post, under Colonel Harold Taber, is responsible for the operation of that port and the surrounding area. The major volume of POL (petroleum, oil and lubricants) products used in Korea by the United Nations is off-loaded, processed and shipped at Incheon.

Taegu Military Post, commanded by Colonel E. P. Beyer, houses the headquarters of the Korean Communications Zone and is responsible for administrative control over the large area between Pusan and the rear boundary of Eighth Army to the north.

Meshing smoothly with the operations of the other three sub-commands is the 3rd Transportation Railway Command. The 3rd "T" funnels the supplies from the ports and airfields to their destinations. It also operates daily passenger service between South Korea's larger cities, with such trains as the "UN Express" and the "KComZ Comet."

KComZ's signal operations well justify the "communications" in its name. "Long-lines" telephone cables, teletypewriter services, radio facilities and Army aircraft provide the most complete and efficient liaison system ever known in a combat area.

Second only to the primary mission of support to combat forces in Korea, is KComZ's role in the Armed Forces Assistance to Korea (AFAC) program. KComZ troops are giving supervision and technical assistance to Koreans who are doing the work on their own projects. Millions of dollars worth of equipment and man-hours are being provided by KComZ to rebuild Korea.

Since the United States Army first arrived in Korea, the individual soldier has taken the cause of the Korean people into his heart. Nearly every orphanage in the country is sponsored by some individual or unit and KComZ's "Operation Goodwill," assisted by the generosity of donors in the United States, gave thousands of packages of clothing and toys to needy Koreans last December. The need for warm clothing still exists in Korea, and this year's "Goodwill" campaign stresses that "giving time is all year 'round."

KComZ's medical assistance program has treated many thousands of Korean civilians and ROK Army veterans, as well as offering physical aid and supervision to Korean hospitals.

A former subordinate command of the Korean Communications Zone is about to write the final chapter in its interesting history. The Prisoner of War Command, which at one time was responsible for more than 137,000 Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war, was actually phased out last November. However, on the island of Koje-do, where most of the PW's were interned, the last remnant of the command is completing a tremendous salvage operation. Everything economically removable is being shipped back to Pusan supply depots constituting a saving to the government and taxpayer of more than three million dollars. The fine work being done on Koje is a tribute to Colonel Joseph F. Decker, commanding officer of Camp Thomas E. Clifford there, his staff and his men.

KComZ supervised "Operation Big and Little Switch" and more recently handled the return of more than 22,000 anti-communist Chinese and North Korean former PW's to freedom during "Operation Reclaim." All of these movements of great masses of people by ship, rail and truck were accomplished without a major hitch and helped make military history.

The Meritorious Unit Commendation was awarded to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, KComZ, this March, for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service in support of combat operations in Korea." This award also has been given to many of its subordinate commands. The command also received the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation from ROK President Syngman Rhee last December.

With the cessation of hostilities in Korea in July 1953, the role played by KComZ was not diminished, but more attention could be given to the needs of the Korean population within the zone. Community Relations Advisory Councils were established in each major city. Both Army and Korean civilian authorities serve on the councils, which are fostering good will and understanding between the two peoples.

When I assumed command of the Korean Communications Zone this March, I had already heard of the important role being played by KComZ in Korea. Nevertheless, I was considerably enlightened to see for myself, on the spot, the magnitude of the operations and its effectiveness. The outstanding job done by the officers and men of KComZ under the direction of my predecessors, Major Generals Thomas W. Herren and William S. Lawton, was clearly evident.

There is still a big job ahead of us. In this period of armistice, the work of KComZ continues of paramount importance — both in support of our armed forces and our allies, and in relief and assistance for our Korean friends. When real peace comes to Korea, KComZ will be going ahead at full throttle.

Please send in notice of your change of address promptly.

Will Hasten Pacific Forces Cut

So, the realignment of soldier strength will be accelerated and Far East manpower reduced to meet budget demands.

Latest Pentagon figures show that the Army entered the last month of fiscal '54 with a strength of 1,416,534, which is 234,534 above the end-fiscal '55 objective of 1,173,000.

For the other Services, the comparative figures are as follows:

	June '54	July '55
Navy	735,621	689,000
Air Force	940,700	970,000
Marines	218,590	218,590

As of 1 June, the total strength of the Armed Forces was put at an estimated 3,311,445, with a goal of 3,047,000 set for the end of the current fiscal year.

The Army during the Spring returned from Korea the colors of the 45th Infantry Division of Oklahoma and the 40th Infantry Division of California. However, only a token number of personnel was returned with the divisions' colors.

The cut in Army strength in the Far East will not be spotlighted for public attention, unless the decision is made to return division units as such.

The likelihood appears to be that for a number of months at least the strength will be reduced on an individual basis, namely by not sending replacements in any comparable number for the troops returning to the U. S. on rotation after 16 months, duty in Korea.

Lt. Gen. Myers to Head ATRC

eral Harper describing activities of the ATRC was published in the 19 June issue of THE JOURNAL.

General Myers, 54, was graduated from West Point in 1923, where he had been a varsity football player. His prior service includes duty with the Flying Training Command and later the Flying Division of the Air Training Command, with which he served from December 1945 to May 1947.

Lt. Gen. Myers
